sensation, but tweeting nonsensical things like “Duh, winning”, “Tiger Blood”, and “Warlock.” He would repeat these things in prime time interviews, including a bizarre night on Pierce Morgan’s show, in which Charlie was clearly wasted. Sheen attempted multiple comebacks by hosting web cam shows, where he spewed more craziness, and a video on Funny or Die.com where he cooked food mixed with cigarettes.

Lastly, Charlie attempted a comedy/improv tour, but he was booed off the stage in Chicago and Detroit, and quit shortly thereafter. He also claimed to be starring in a new movie, Major League 3, even though that film was already produced over 10 years ago with Scott Bakula. Somehow, Sheen, like Keith Richards, has managed not to kill himself, so we expect he’ll eventually return to film and TV. Where’s Hot Shots part Twee?

Please help Mike Masse’s son Noah

posted on Jul 21, 2012 | Comments (2)

Mike Masse and Noah

We interviewed our favorite YouTube musician and cover song artist, Mike Masse, in episode 163 of The Paunch Stevenson Show. He was a great guest and we enjoyed discussing music, movies, and video games with him.

Yesterday, Mike posted his version of The Beatles song “Let It Be” on YouTube with this message:

 “Dear Friends and Supporters,

 On July 5th, 2012, my 11-month-old son Noah was diagnosed with a malignant brain tumor. Please consider making a donation of support as well as helping spread this link. The proceeds from your donation will go towards getting Noah the best care possible, as well as helping keep our family afloat while we focus on little Noah's treatment and comfort. Anyone who donates will receive a downloadable MP3 version of this rendition. Here is the link:

 <http://covercows.com/let-it-be-a-fundraiser/>

 A special thanks to Jesse, and everyone else at Cover Cows, for suggesting I record a charity song for Noah, as well as offering to waive any of their proceeds from the donations received. And thanks to Jeff Hall for letting me borrow his video camera (identical to mine), so I could shoot the performance from two angles at once.

 And thanks to all of you so much for your friendship, generosity, and support.

 Love,

 -Mike

 P.S. If you prefer, you can also buy this song from iTunes (with Apple taking 30% of the purchase price, as is their policy). Here's the iTunes link:

 <http://itunes.apple.com/us/album/let-it-be-single/id546401724>

So if you can, please help Mike out. We're sure he and his family appreciate even the smallest donation. Thanks!

95.05 [4768] Success Odyssey - Ep. 17: Morgana Rae and Your Relationship with Money (1/3/13) 52:12

Morgana Rae is an internationally acclaimed life coach, author, and professional speaker who inspires her clients to change their relationship with money. Dubbed the “Money Magic Queen,” Morgana has been a featured expert alongside Deepak Chopra, Marianne Williamson, John Gray, John Assaraf and T Harv Eker, and her books, cds, magazine articles and classes have impacted the lives of thousands of people worldwide. Today she talks about her new book, Financial Alchemy - Twelve Months of Magic and Manifestation, and her upcoming 3-Day Telesummit "Money, Love & Magic!" which will be held January 15 thru the 17th, 2013.

Here's Morgana's six steps to improving your relationship with money:

1. Identify the root cause of your money (and/or life) problems, pain.
2. Visualize what your "Money Monster" looks like.
3. Get rid of your Money Monster.
4. Meet your "Money Honey."
5. Find out what your Money Honey needs from you.
6. Take concrete, measurable action!

Onsug Archive Update

The archive of The Overnightscape Underground is current, up to the end of December 2012.

93 Lots

4,551 tracks

3887:19:45 (162 Days / 23.1 Weeks / 5.3 Months)

Average length - 51:15

The Main Archive (196 GB) is at Archive.org. This is all the audio as it was originally released. Most files are 128kbps stereo MP3s.

Pocket Overnightscape (40.1 GB) is the same set of tracks as the main archive, but converted to lo-fi 24kbps mono MP3s. It can be downloaded loose or as ZIPs.

Overnightscape Handbook 93 is a PDF that contains detailed information about the archive.

I'm also working on these archive-related projects:

New Pocket Overnightscape is a reorganization of the archive to make it easier to find each show. It is current up to the end of October 2012. Development is on hold at the moment, but I do plan on returning to it. The site right now is a simple file browser and audio player, and is a work in progress.

The Paunch Stevenson Show - I'm working on adding all the episodes to the Onsug Archive. And also, I plan on posting the all the new shows here on Onsug, starting with the next episode, number 211.

The Main Archive (203 GB) is at Archive.org. This is all the audio as it was originally released. Most files are 128kbps stereo MP3s.

Pocket Overnightscape (42.2 GB) is the same set of tracks as the main archive, but converted to lo-fi 24kbps mono MP3s. It can be downloaded loose or as ZIPs.

Overnightscape Handbook 95 is a PDF that contains detailed information about the archive.

I'm also working on:

New Pocket Overnightscape is a reorganization of the archive to make it easier to find each show. It is current up to the end of October 2012. Development is on hold at the moment, but I do plan on returning to it. The site right now is a simple file browser and audio player, and is a work in progress.

Onsug Archive Update March 2013

The archive of The Overnightscape Underground is current, up to the end of February 2013.

97 Lots

4869 transmissions

4176:14:51 (174 Days / 24.9 Weeks / 5.7 Months)

Average length - 51:28

The Main Archive (206 GB) is at Archive.org. This is all the audio as it was originally released. Most files are 128kbps stereo MP3s.

The Lo-fi Archive (formerly known as Pocket Overnightscape) (43.1 GB) is the same set of tracks as the main archive, but converted to lo-fi 24kbps mono MP3s. It can be downloaded loose or as ZIPs.

Overnightscape Handbook 97 is a PDF that contains detailed information about the archive.

I'm also working on:

Pocket Overnightscape (formerly known as New Pocket Overnightscape) - a reorganization of the archive to make it easier to find each show. It is current up to the end of October 2012. The site right now is a simple file browser and audio player, and is a work in progress. I am currently working on this project, with a new version that includes everything up to the end of February 2013.

Pocket Overnightscape Preview

Check out a preview of Pocket Overnightscape

For the 10th anniversary of the show, I wanted to create a new collection of the complete archive of The Overnightscape Underground. Currently with nearly six month of audio and 5,000 tracks, organized into 97 Lots, and totaling over 200 GB, the main archive on Archive.org is an awesome permanent record, but a bit difficult to navigate.

So, I set out to create a new, compact version of the archive, containing the exact same set of audio. The result is Pocket Overnightscape. And while I still need to work on the guide and the introductory audio, you can preview the main part of Pocket Overnightscape at the above link. The page is a simple file browser with very basic audio playing abilities - so really only appropriate for a preview.

Pocket Overnightscape uses a new “patch” format, which is 12 to 24 hours of audio in a single file, with 20 hours being the target length. It uses the lo-fi MP3 audio format, so each patch is around 200 MB.

The set is organized into 8 channels, each channel containing between 21 and 41 patches, for a total of 225 patches.

So, a listener need only choose a channel, and then choose a patch from that channel to listen to. Patches are similar in length to a longer audiobook. Each track has a computer voice intro and outro, to orient the listener by sound alone.

Most audio players support a function of keeping track of where you last left off listening, to make it easier to listen to a patch over time.

Pocket Overnightscape is 42.4 GB, and can easily fit on a 64 GB flash drive, which currently sell at retail for around $30.

Like a book or a movie, Pocket Overnightscape is a static work. Any audio additions will be done as supplements or a completely new edition. It was a huge personal effort, taking a massive amount of time and energy, but in the end, I think it was worth it.

I will be releasing it to Archive.org in the next few weeks. And I am hoping to produce a limited series of flash drives containing Pocket Overnightscape.

If you want to download some patches, the file browser does have that functionality, or you can browse directly here:

pocket.overnightscape.com/Pocket_Overnightscape/

Note: The name “Pocket Overnightscape” was previously used for the Lo-fi Archive - but now it is exclusively being used for this release. The code name for this project during development was “Overnightscape Tavern”.

99.31 [4963] The Shambleshow #90: Fiery Furnaces (4/14/13) 1:56:38

Book and song by The Guess Who, refill of Citalopram, lady by the dumpster, your chemical makeup keeps changing, very obvious advice for parents, the Fiery Furnaces, ice cream truck, White Stripes mix that a friend made for me, contemporary bands I like/don't like, aol radio, harder to become attached to an album of music nowadays, park ambiance, my cell phone shuts itself off, Melissa McCarthy on SNL, what the Fiery Furnaces sound like, driving through campus, middle age, guitar man, my first semester at Illinois State, rumors of hail were unfounded, Healthpoint, the masochistic experience of throwing a kid's birthday party at Chuck E. Cheese, the AT&T store, Identity Thief, no no no!!!!, I just bought an iPhone, some idiot quoted in Us Weekly about women being submissive, onsug.com, my hypocrisy regarding e-books, trying to play audio on the iPhone, She's Come Undone by Wally Lamb, incomplete Tapestry episode, Jackie lost her hat, Chuck E. Cheese is loud, spontaneous decision to buy my wife a book, famous people who died recently, only one surviving member of the Are You Being Served? cast, memorable quotes from Father Ted, ranch McWrap with grilled chicken, lost my ringtone of Africa by Toto, Shambleshow in varying stages of completion, McD's employee staggering back and forth, weird phone calls at work, annoying repeated calls for a former co-worker, this is not a family show, that was kinda fun. Recorded 4/13/13. Theme song: You Ain't Gonna Get It (Jaycob's Ladder, Public Domain).

Sound collage of clips from many episodes of various American old-time radio comedies, arranged in random, haphazard, often repetitive fashion, then scrambled up again and again just for good measure. I did not listen to any of the clips (or even the episodes they came from) beforehand, so the resulting collage is as much a surprise to me as it is to you. Compiled 3/25/13.

In this episode:

-  Jurassic Park 3D (2013) re-release,
-  memories of our small local movie theater, the Franklin in Nutley, NJ,
-  special effects still very convincing 20 years later,
-  running UNIX on an Apple Quadra?,
-  updated dinosaur science,
-  how do birds fly?,
-  Jeff Goldblum's odd mannerisms and resemblance to Howard Stern,
-  did the sequels ruin the franchise?,
-  legacy and impact of Jurassic Park,
-  our surprise that Ask.com still exists,
-  review of Total Recall (2012), starring Colin Farrell, Jessica Biel, and Kate Beckinsale,
-  dumb backstory, lots of CGI, Blade Runner-esque, lens flares,
-  cool technology and CGI stunts,
-  celebrity deaths (Roger Ebert, Margaret Thatcher, Annette Funicello, and Jonathan Winters),
-  cicada bugs invade again, first time in 17 years,
-  Tami Erin runs afoul of the law,
-  Norm Macdonald is back with another interview show, Norm MacDonald Live on YouTube,
-  FunnyOrDie.com KickstarterOrDie April Fools Videos,
-  Dinosaurs, Darkwing Duck, Family Matters Movie, and Sliders The Movie,
-  Reginald VelJohnson, Jerry O'Connell,

100.48 [5051] The Shambleshow #98: iPhone Test (5/18/13) 40:10

This episode was recorded using my iPhone. Unfortunately, despite much effort, I was unable to retrieve the recorded file from the iPhone onto my computer, so I was forced to play it on the iPhone while setting my digital voice recorder up to the speaker in order to preserve the recording in some form. There must have been a better way, but after trying everything I can think of and failing even after consulting the online Audacity manual (as well as various Apple FAQs, etc.) I just gave up in favor of the tried-and-true voice recorder. I'll figure it out someday when I have a bit more patience. In the meantime, enjoy this episode that features talk of Bi-Coastal Becky's generosity, home recording in the past, laundry, the impending Shambleshow #100, audio tour of part of the house until I get distracted and forget to go upstairs, Community's renewal, the penultimate episode of The Office, the memory of Johnny Carson, Late Night With Seth Meyers, disappointment over SNL hosted by Kristen Wiig, Doctor Who online fandom, parking lot. Recorded 5/14/13. Theme song: You Ain't Gonna Get It (Jaycob's Ladder, Public Domain).

102.48 [5141] Great Moments From Lum and Abner, Part 1 (6/23/13) 1:01:39

A compilation of some of my favorite clips from my favorite old-time radio program, Lum and Abner. First of four audio releases. I'm hoping these clips will give you a good idea who the varied characters are. Keep in mind that most of these characters were played by either Chester Lauck (Lum Edwards, Grandpappy Spears, Cedric Weehunt) or Norris Goff (Abner Peabody, Dick Huddleston, Squire Skimp, Mousey Gray, Ulysses S. Quincy, Doc Miller). These clips are taken from various storylines from the run of the series, but hopefully I've included enough that they can be easily followed outside of context of the episodes. The "two old fellows" manage the Jotem Down Store for most of the series, with the occasional side venture into some other business, including a movie theater, a circus, a bank, and a radio station, among many others. This collection just barely scratches the surface of this top-notch old-time radio program, which aired from 1933 to 1954. Oh, what a beauty day!

Onsug Archive Update July 2013

The archive of The Overnightscape Underground is current, up to the end of June 2013.

102 Lots
5156 transmissions
4590:44:13 (191.3 Days / 27.3 Weeks / 6.3 Months)
Average length - 53:25

The Main Archive (223 GB) is at Archive.org. This is all the audio as it was originally released. Most files are 128kbps stereo MP3s.

The Lo-Fi Archive (47 GB) is the same set of tracks as the main archive, but converted to lo-fi 24kbps mono MP3s. It can be downloaded loose or as ZIPs.

Overnightscape Handbook 102 is a PDF that contains detailed information about the archive.

Pocket Overnightscape is a compact edition of the entire archive up to Lot 97.

It can take a little while for the latest additions to be indexed on Archive.org, so here's a direct link to the June 2013 release.

Shambleshow Announcement

STAND BY FOR THIS IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Coming soon: a new phase, new format, new era for The Shambleshow, starting with episode #103. The ongoing series hosted by Shambles Constant will be released on a frequent, semidaily basis, in episodes of roughly 30 minutes in length. Exact starting date has not yet been determined, but if all goes well it will be before the end of July. As of today (7/14/13) two shows have been recorded, and Shambles (that's me!) has been quite pleased with the results.

Meanwhile, the recordings from this year's vacation to Minocqua, Wisconsin will see release eventually, but will no longer be packaged as Shambleshows. They will now be released as episodes of Falling Cow in the Field.

The Tapestry series will return at some future date, but for now it's on hold.

Falling Cow Productions is excited to continue its association with the Overnightscape Underground. Now dance, merry listeners!

A Career In The Weeklies was created by Marc Gorcey in Toronto, Canada. It was released on Toronto-based Internet radio station UMFm.net, from 2003 to 2005.

I was a fan of the series - it left a big impression on me. But a few years later, I noticed it was no longer available online. So I contacted Marc Gorcey, and he gave me permission to re-release the show, so that more people would be able to experience it.

I am very happy to be able to present this show to you here on The Overnightscape Underground.

--Frank Edward Nora, September 23, 2013

A Career In The Weeklies is a comedic soap opera adventure mystery.

Our hero is Eric Shea, a layabout and secretly asexual drinker who finds himself charmed into the exciting world of Toronto's weekly press. The charmer is a white-suited devil-tongued rascal by the name of Johnny Whispers.

Johnny and Eric meet in a Queen Street bar, and quickly strike up a friendship. Johnny explains that he plans to launch an explosive new newspaper called The Anti-News Weekly - a paper specifically designed to enrage the population of Toronto. He and his sidekick/companion Katrenkia Von Washing Machine convince Eric to follow them into their mad vision.

Johnny seems to have lived everywhere, done everything, and is currently in withdrawal from a severe Grivol dependency. His word is not to be trusted, but he's never had a dull moment in his entire life.

Katrenkia obsesses over Johnny, and pines for the time they spent in the Peruvian jungle together living off of guinea pig meat and wearing guinea pig leather. Eventually her overpowering shame drives her to nail herself into a wooden box of self-denial.

Eric drinks, frets that the secret of his asexuality will come out, worries about losing his mind, and works his ass off for the Anti-News Weekly.

Along the way, they meet such characters as SuperBeth the Kung Fu lawyer, Ace and Krystal the missile-firing potheads, Dave the reluctant porn merchant, slimy Member of Parliament Steve Curtis, and - of course - Baby Coco the lottery winning one year old.

The Anti-News Weekly is dedicated to provoking the masses from their long and fitful sleep. It shall succeed by positioning itself exactly 180 degrees from the popular opinion and broadcasting its opinions loudly and directly into the ears and eyes of those who don't want to listen. It shall destroy the inane, eviscerate the beloved, desecrate the sacred. It is necessary to destroy in order to create, and nothing begs for destruction more than the stale, palid hopes and imaginations of the common people. God save Toronto.

Republic of Avalon Radio returns to Onsug

Jim & Lillian Fidler have been doing their show Republic of Avalon Radio for many years from Newfoundland, Canada. A good number of their episodes have been released here on The Overnightscape Underground. Their last episode on Onslug was two years ago - ROAR-2011-09-19 - EP Announcement on 9/19/11.

I am happy to announce that Jim & Lillian are back! In those two years, they've done six new shows - the most recent from just a few weeks ago. I'll be releasing these six in the near future here on The Overnightscape Underground.

In other news, Jim has a new album that will be coming out soon, called "RPM". Check it out on Facebook: Jim Fidler's New Album Launch and Indiegogo Campaign

Also, Jim is raising funds on Indiegogo to help release the album: Jim Fidler's New Album - RPM

Help spread the word!

107.35 [5373] Republic of Avalon Radio - Episode 118 - Bound Down For Nova Scotia (9/13/12) 20:11

I Still Remember is the working title of a full-length documentary that Lillian is producing about Jim, his life and his music. Lillian has set up an Indigogo campaign in order to raise funds for a trip to Halifax. Jim has been invited to attend and perform at a special tribute and ceremony to commemorate the School for the Blind in Halifax on September 28th, 2012. Jim attended the school from 1974 to 1983 and it was torn down in 1984.

This trip will enable us to gather vital information and interviews for the documentary. We will interview Jim's first music teacher, his bandmates and friends. The funds will be used mainly for transportation costs in getting us from St. John's, Newfoundland to Halifax and back. Anything over and above will be used in the making of the film.

The campaign ends on September 24th and there are lots of perks for those who contribute to the campaign.

A Career In The Weeklies

A Career In The Weeklies was created by Marc Gorcey in Toronto, Canada. It was released on Toronto-based Internet radio station UMFN.net, from 2003 to 2005.

I was a fan of the series – it left a big impression on me. But a few years later, I noticed it was no longer available online. So I contacted Marc Gorcey, and he gave me permission to re-release the show, so that more people would be able to experience it.

I am very happy to be able to present this show to you on The Overnightscape Underground Archive.

108.27 [5419] Quaquaiversal Satellite - Sanctum (10/16/13) 51:32

Carrie Michel on Mystery - a follow-up to this week's Overnightscape Central!! Baby Secret Musics!! PQ reads a classic and unique 1933 Vic and Sade episode, and MORE!

Further Info (courtesy Jimbo at vicandsade.blogspot.com):

The Vic and Sade episode, Vic Has a Sore Knee, was actually one of the first 75 or so Vic and Sade episodes to ever be on the radio. It was first done in 1932 and (somewhat miraculously) re-done the next year.

The script is one the strangest you will find in the whole of old-time radio. This is far beyond the famous "Adam and Eve" skit that somehow banned Mae West from radio for a good 10 years or more. It is way beyond "The War of the Worlds" or any of that ilk. I do not consider myself an expert of old-time radio as there are just far too many episodes to hear out there but of the 10,000 or shows I have heard, nothing comes close to this particular Vic and Sade episode.

Was it funny? I'm not really sure if it was funny or not. It does not read "funny." As a matter of fact, it reads several different ways.

In the beginning, it must have been quite somber. A two year child has died. Not even in the soapiest of soap operas did authors dare take a two year old baby and "kill" it, even or especially in 1932. Yet, this is what happens in this episode.

Then was have Rush joking with his mother about how good she looks as she is about to go to the baby's funeral. I'm not suggesting in way, shape or form there is anything wrong with this but a look at the script when this happens shows clearly that Rush is prodding his mother almost to a blushing point with compliments about her beauty as she is about to step out the door for the baby's funeral. If nothing else, it's quite odd.

The oddities continue as Rush prods his father with questions about the afterlife. Vic is uncomfortable with these questions

Then there is the whole racial matter. I'm not sure how to approach it or even how I see it. It all boils down to 1932 being a far different time than 2013. Rush wants to help his less-fortunate neighbors, but even the most open-hearted person can see that simply does it the wrong way in the script. He doesn't ask ahead of time, he's got people sleeping in the bed behind the backs of his mother and father and most importantly, his mother is going to be shocked when she comes home to find them there (Sade is not the easiest person to trick nor appease. Sade will be a bear when she finds out and Vic KNOWS this.)

So while this off script doesn't really seem to be funny, it probably was very, very funny – so funny in fact that Rhymer chose to have the cast do it again less than a year after the first run on the air.

There's no doubt that this script wouldn't today and might even cause a controversy. But it shows you just how far ahead of his time that Rhymer was and always has been.

108.31 [5423] Gunkcast 25: Bad Hair Day In The U.S.A. (Part 1) (October 2013) 1:06:18

The retro journey begins! So how does an episode which starts with Byron walking his dog suddenly lead to a skydiving adventure, which in turn triggers a wild nostalgic trip to a certain past decade? You’ll just have to tune in to find out these answers. This is one of the biggest (& definitely the longest schemed) outings for the podcast to date! So join Byron and several featured surprise guests as he hot-wires the old Delorean & takes us on a trip back....!

Also to note, this episode is abound with much great music of a past era... as interpreted by not only our usual podcast house bands: The Gunk U.K. & Curmudgeon, but also by some of Byron’s friends & family alike. Rumors are this Part #1 episode may include a vocal debut by Byron’s wife Maggie Mae, as well as contributions by one of his earliest childhood friends who is now a dedicated musician himself...Stuart Chaseman.

109.05 [5443] The Paunch Stevenson Show - Episode 227 (10/16/13) 55:26

In this episode:

Long awaited New York Comic-Con 2013 retrospective.

In this episode we met the following celebrities:

 Patrick Stewart,
 William Shatner,
 David Duchovny,
 Gillian Anderson,
 Stan Lee,
 Hulk Hogan,
 SyFy's Defiance cast members (Jaime Murray, Grant Bowler, Stephanie Leonidas),  and Ernie Hudson.

And made these observations:

-  impossible to get into a panel (The League),
-  waiting in lines for 7 hours,
-  rude Con volunteers,
-  long lines for the Power Ranger, Torchwood stars, and R.L. Stine,
-  trouble finding our photo op print outs,
-  and our annoyance with Hulk Hogan.

In this episode:

-  Wil Wheaton writing the forward to the book,
-  how did Ian become an actor?,
-  thoughts on a childhood in acting,
-  working with Darren McGavin,
-  the "belated" cult status of the film,
-  A Christmas Story reunion photo op at Chiller Theatre October 25-27, 2013,
-  Corey Feldman,
-  Pink Floyd,
-  Idiocracy,
-  enduring legacy of A Christmas Story (1983),
-  National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation (1989),
-  old Christmas movie dramatic classics vs. newer comedic classics,
-  getting "pink bunny suit type" lousy Christmas gifts,
-  daring kids to get their tongue frozen to a pole,
-  practical uses of urine,
-  a unique photo opportunity with A Christmas Story cast,
-  and the Wonka kids.

109.53 [5491] The Midnight Citizen 72 – “Crash” (November 2013) 1:10:51

A golf cart disaster involving a busted wheel becomes a perfect metaphor for my life after Thanksgiving 2013. Also: saw another guy “rampling”!, or at least I think I did; rampling vs. podcasting; the Iron Bowl; Black Friday; the 25th Anniversary of Mystery Science Theater, and more!

The New Nightstation

Welcome to Nightstation - my new VR project:

<http://nightstation.com/2013/12/08/welcome-to-nightstation/>

As you may remember, Nightstation was originally a brief Internet radio experiment (from Nov. 2011 to Feb. 2012).

In the Spring of 2012, I spent a huge amount of time and energy to obtain the domain name Nightstation.com.

And then... nothing... Nightstation was completely inert... until now!

112.34 [5592] Gunkcast 26: Bad Hair Day 2: The 80's World Tour! (December 2013) 1:30:15

“There’s been a lot of talk about this next podcast...maybe, maybe too much talk!” Yes, Byron summons the podcast listeners to rally behind his cause with these immortal words which he utters live under a blood red sky. That is...before he pulls the parachute (wait...huh?)!

To kick off the 2nd part of our big retro journey, we find Byron still plummeting towards the Earth on his skydive while he continues the nostalgic trip three decades into the past. But this time (& never-before-seen on Gunkcast) the show goes international for his first guest! Here Byron learns what a “scouser” really is, finds out the origins of this guest’s great love of a certain Chicago sports team, & why he actually has tried to block the 80’s out from his life! After this, Byron free-falls back to the U.S.A. & heads South for some friends (a hint at another podcast team) to vocalize their diverse opinions of the 80’s. This is to quite hilarious results! Finally, the bomb is dropped. One of Byron’s oldest pals stops by the studio with a box which contains the ultimate secret from both of their dark (musical) pasts!

As with the first part episode of Bad Hair Day, this one is abound with much great music of the 80’s (as interpreted by several outstanding contributors)! Some of these include The Basement Lights, Letter Seventeen, The Negligible Nukes, The Flat-U-Ants, Phil ‘Fingers McKraken’... as well as the regular Gunkcast house bands: Curmudgeon & The Gunk U.K.!

Also, watch for one of the whackiest intros ever in the history of the podcast... & we strongly hint at (several) possible hidden endings which you definitely won’t want to miss! In a nutshell, this one has it all folks! Cheers!

And as always...please share the love and listen to some of our favorite podcasts at: Static Radio, Special Delivery, The Overnightscape, Insignificast, The Not New Review, For Whatever Reason, & Letter Seventeen!

The Overnightscape Underground - Lot 113: The Frank Nora Time Machine
44 transmissions [5601-5644] 52:44:55
onsug.com / TheOvernightscape.com

I call it "patching in" - transcending time and space to hang out with everyone from the future. I do it by recording my Internet radio show, The Overnightscape, in a way that is welcoming to future listeners, and making sure that all the episodes are always easily and freely available.

Here in February 2014, I've done around 2,000 episodes - including a few years where I changed the name and format of the show, before returning to the original. And next month will mark 11 years of The Overnightscape.

On the show, I talk about the things that excite me - pop culture, food, technology, the occult... philosophy, theme parks, conspiracy theories, toiletries... pinball, popcorn, tobacco, typefaces.... and just about everything in-between.

All the episodes are available in The Overnightscape Underground collection on Archive.org - which includes my shows and also shows by others hosts. Right now there are 5,600 tracks, totaling 7 solid months of audio. It's already a lifetime of listening pleasure for anyone - but it can be a little overwhelming.

That's why I decided to put together The Frank Nora Time Machine. It's a compact, portable collection of 44 episodes covering the entire history of the show. I chose four shows from each year - using true random numbers from random.org.

So jump right in and visit me at these various times and places... and once you're done, there are thousands more episodes to patch into. Enjoy!

This time on the ROAR:

Greetings from Jörgen Hansson in Sweden,

<http://www.jorgenhansson.com>

opening remarks from Jim, a call for listener shout-outs, record a brief message, Example: "Hi, this is Juicy Wigglebopper in Redgrass, Pensyltucky, and you're listening to Republic Of Avalon Radio"

Then, go to:

<http://www.republicofavalonradio.com>

and send it to us...

Jim talks about setting goals and some of the new excitement about the new ROAR, we dig into the ROAR archives and pull out an interview with Toby McDonald, the coach of the 2006, Olympic gold medal winning curling team and kick back for a great chat.

Music this time:

Our theme, Genesis, Rising Of The Moon and Fields Of Gold by Jim Fidler

Frank Nora Show Numbering

(Originally posted March 24th, 2012 on TheOvernightscape.com)

The Overnightscape went through a period of chaos from approx. 2008-2010, where I recorded the show under a number of different names. On May 29, 2010, I decided to start fresh with The Frank Nora Show #1500. This was the 1500th show I had done, counting all the different shows - The Overnightscape, The Rampler, The Overnightscape Underground, etc.

Then, on May 9, 2011, I revived The Overnightscape, with The Overnightscape #782 - which was equivalent to The Frank Nora Show #1683. I continued to include the "Frank Nora Show Number" (in the format "F1623"), to continue counting all the shows I had done.

Today, March 24, 2012, I am reviewing the number, to make sure it is correct. The most recent show I did was "The Overnightscape 862: The Carleton Branch (3/22/12)" - with a Frank Nora Show Number of 1790. I double-checked this, and it was correct, counting episodes of The Overnightscape.

However, in my review, I found that in the time after FN Show 1500, I had done 22 additional shows that I would consider Frank Nora Shows. So, the adjusted FN Show Number for The Overnightscape 862 is... 1812.

The 22 additional shows are listed below:

Misc: 5

55.20 [2215] Late Night Music Show (8/8/10) 3:24:20
56.06 [2278] Macho Condor #1 (9/4/10) 1:19:54
56.23 [2295] Sneaky TT Broadcasting System 1 (9/12/10) 4:46:18
72.08 [3065] Sneaky TT Broadcasting System 2 (9/5/11) 8:25:42
72.01 [3058] Nightweek: The New Season (9/1/11) 1:03:13

Nightstation Patches: 17

77.01 [3314] Pinecone (11/19/11) (Frank) 8:42:41
77.02 [3315] Doorjamb (11/22/11) (Frank) 8:48:24
77.03 [3316] Afterglow (11/24/11) (Frank) 8:15:51
77.04 [3317] Blacktop (11/26/11) (Frank) 8:47:29
77.05 [3318] Sidewinder (11/27/11) (Frank) 8:59:22
77.06 [3319] Gasohol (12/3/11) (Frank) 8:47:12
77.07 [3320] Sarsaparilla (12/4/11) (Frank) 9:11:43
77.10 [3323] Tempura (12/10/11) (Frank) 8:18:35
77.12 [3325] Policewoman (12/12/11) (Frank) 6:38:23
77.15 [3328] Kitchenette (12/18/11) (Frank) 10:19:36
77.17 [3330] Would (12/23/11) (Frank) 10:03:08
77.18 [3331] Loungewear (12/26/11) (Frank) 7:33:41
77.21 [3334] Coaxial (12/31/11) (Frank) 10:19:48
77.22 [3335] Seaboard (1/3/12) (Frank) 8:48:42

79.03 [3387] Hotshot (1/12/12) (Frank) 10:36:57

80.10 [3400] Nightstation with Frank 1: Swank (2/9/12) 2:14:45

Nightstation with Frank: Southbound (3/11/12)

So, there are currently 862 episodes of The Overnightscape... which means that there are 950 Frank Nora Shows besides The Overnightscape:

396 episodes of The Rampler

322 shows on The Overnightscape Underground (before Frank Nora Show 1500)

183 episodes of The Frank Nora Show, starting with The Frank Nora Show 1500 (including 3 episodes of “The Rampler Weekly”)

27 additional because The Overnightsapes 782-786 were released in a segmented form (that I soon realized was not a good idea)

22 episodes listed above

That sorts things out for now!

116.15 [5732] Chadcast - The Gospel According to St Pong II (3/7/14) 53:28

In 1973 a relatively new employee Chad Bowers was tasked with reading the then new Atari company newsletter. This is the second remaining episode

Atari's in-house newsletter was called The Gospel According to St. Pong. ("Founded in service to the Atari family," read the masthead.) There had been a company-wide contest to come up with a name, and "a committee of Atarians" chose from a list of candidates. Dennis Flinn of the purchasing department was the winner.

Pocket Overnightscape – Channel 9 – Yearly Update 1

This yearly update to Pocket Overnightscape contains all The Overnightscape Underground audio from March 2013 through February 2014.

The audio in Pocket Overnightscape is presented in “Patches” – audio files that are generally 12 to 24 hours long, aiming for 20 hours.

For this update I made a few changes. I decided not to do the computer intro voice because it’s just too time-consuming. Also, I allowed for shorter Patches to accomodate the content.

117.08 [5790] Gunkcast 23: Vintage Lunchbox-Roadshow-Meetup (May 2013) 45:11

Byron talks all things old school, takes the show on the road, & meets up with a couple surprise guests in “Vintage Lunchbox Roadshow Meetup!”

“Vintage Lunchbox-Roadshow-Meetup”

What happens when Byron starts off this episode wandering around a Chicago neighborhood on his lunch break from work rambling about items of nostalgic value from his past, but then changes gears & takes the show on the road South (& meeting up with a surprise couple of guests along the way)?

Some extra hints about this episode may be found in a few alternate titles Byron originally had: Escape From Goose Island, Are We There Yet?, Byron Can’t Drive 70, The Tampler, When (Podcast) Worlds Collide, Punk Rock Beach Wedding Invasion, Random Canadians & Internet People Are Cool!

So join Byron, along with his family & band, on this rollicking adventure which treks from the streets of Chicago to the deep South and back (& featuring some great soundtrack music which includes Curmudgeon, The Gunk U.K. & Byron’s surprise guest as well)! What more could possibly be packed in one episode outing?

Also, please share the love and listen to some of our favorite podcasts at: Static Radio, Special Delivery, Onsug, Insignificast, For Whatever Reason, & Letter Seventeen!

117.15 [5797] Macho Condor Deluxe (4/6/14) 3:59:10

104 random tracks from the Other Side, each under 4 minutes in length, with some mastering applied. I was able to do this fairly easily because I've been spending a lot of time keeping the Other Side tracks organized.

The result is a cool four hour broadcast that, to me, would be an ideal companion to a long night of working or driving or playing games.

Macho Condor was an experimental predecessor to the Other Side, so I thought it would be cool to bring back the name for this little experiment.

Rediscovery of the library vs. co-oworking space | 'In the money spending mood' series: new Wacom drawing tablet vs. new iMac | getting lazy with clothing purchases | Shame of gaming (procrastination) | Bioshock Infinite | Why travel if you have VR? | Indonesian memories vs. Bioshock | Waiting for 'Facebook Rift' (?) | Learning German through comic books and memrise app | Easter denial 2014 | End of Cinematography?

"In the 1950s, cinema was as important as bread—but it isn't the case any more. We thought cinema would assert itself as an instrument of knowledge, a microscope, a telescope...At the Cinémathèque, I discovered a world which nobody had spoken to me about. They'd told us about Goethe, but not Dreyer...We watched silent films in the era of talkies. We dreamed about film. We were like Christians in the catacombs." - Jean-Luc Godard

117.29 [5811] Great Moments From Lum and Abner, Part 2 (4/12/14) 1:10:43

A compilation of some of my favorite clips from my favorite old-time radio program, Lum and Abner. Second of four audio releases. I'm hoping these clips will give you a good idea who the varied characters are. Keep in mind that most of these characters were played by either Chester Lauck (Lum Edwards, Grandpappy Spears, Cedric Weehunt) or Norris Goff (Abner Peabody, Dick Huddleston, Squire Skimp, Mousey Gray, Ulysses S. Quincy, Doc Miller). These clips are taken from various storylines from the run of the series, but hopefully I've included enough that they can be easily followed outside of context of the episodes. The "two old fellows" manage the Jotem Down Store for most of the series, with the occasional side venture into some other business, including a movie theater, a circus, a bank, and a radio station, among many others. This collection just barely scratches the surface of this top-notch old-time radio program, which aired from 1933 to 1954. Oh, what a beauty day!

Keep an ear out for Ben Withers (Clarence Hartzell, who played Uncle Fletcher in Vic and Sade).

117.34 [5816] The Sounds of Disneyworld, Part 3 (4/16/14) 2:25:50

Part 3 recorded 10/2/13 and 10/4/13.

Shambles and the Constants explore Disneyworld! We're back at Epcot, catching a few attractions we had missed before (and a revisit to Turtle Talk; the audience participation makes every visit with Crush a little different). Starting at about 1:05:51, and continuing for the next hour, you will hear an ambient soundscape as I walk all the way around the countries of the Epcot world. (In fact, I think I walked all the way around twice!)

In the last ten minutes Jackie and I do The Sum of All Thrills, where you can design your own roller coaster track. Jackie wrote a report on this experience for school. She said she really enjoyed it, and her teacher said her report turned out great.

This concludes the Sounds of Disneyworld Trilogy.

117.48 [5830] Saved From Oblivion - Lear Guess What (4/21/14) 28:00

Welcome to another Saved from Oblivion!

Jimbo takes you into his own, hand-picked treasures of old-time radio. He tells you just a bit about the episode and then lets the show do the talking. For brevity, each show will last 40 minutes or less.

Today's show features two short programs. The first show features Orson Welles, in a show simply known by the sponsor's name: Lear. He gives us his own news commentary of the day (in post-war July 1946) and my bet is that he will surprise you with his passion and charisma, as he reveals his feelings about an African-American veteran who was unjustly abused by the police.

The second program, called Guess What, is much lighter. It's an interactive quiz program. When you play along and try your own hand at the quiz, you will find it's not so easy. This show was directed at the late teen and young adult audience. Were kids in the early 1950's that much smarter than us, with our internet?

117.51 [5833] Saved From Oblivion - Overly Dramatic Etymologies (4/22/14) 26:54

Welcome to another Saved from Oblivion!

Jimbo takes you into his own, hand-picked treasures of old-time radio. He tells you just a bit about the episode and then lets the show do the talking. For brevity, each show will last 40 minutes or less.

Today's show features many short programs. The first show, The Police Reporters, is the episode called, “The Omelet that Cost a Man His Head”. It's from 1933. It's proof that 90% of radio in the early 1930's was perhaps a little too dramatic. However, this is what makes it fun, listening to the theatrics.

The second program, and those after it are from the more intelligent program, but a very short 1959 series called, Basil Rathbone, Word Detective. Mr. Rathbone, a well-versed Shakespearean actor of note, did these programs for Underwood typewriters. What we have here are word/phrase etymologies presented to us in his wonderful style. Fun and informative!

117.53 [5835] Saved From Oblivion - Nightwatch (4/23/14) 29:52

Welcome to another Saved from Oblivion!

Jimbo takes you into his own, hand-picked treasures of old-time radio. He tells you just a bit about the episode and then lets the show do the talking. For brevity, each show will last 40 minutes or less.

Today's show features a program called, Nightwatch. In the middle to late 1950's, Nightwatch was a Cops-like radio show, where a man with a tape recorder went out with the Culver City, California police on calls. The results are sometimes bizarre and other times mundane.

The best part of all, is that you get a window into 1950's life (usually the seedier side) and you'll get a view of how "the other half" lived.

117.62 [5844] Great Moments From Lum and Abner, Part 3 (4/26/14) 1:17:31

A compilation of some of my favorite clips from my favorite old-time radio program, Lum and Abner. Third of four audio releases. I'm hoping these clips will give you a good idea who the varied characters are. Keep in mind that most of these characters were played by either Chester Lauck (Lum Edwards, Grandpappy Spears, Cedric Weehunt) or Norris Goff (Abner Peabody, Dick Huddleston, Squire Skimp, Mousey Gray, Ulysses S. Quincy, Doc Miller). These clips are taken from various storylines from the run of the series, but hopefully I've included enough that they can be easily followed outside of context of the episodes. The "two old fellows" manage the Jotem Down Store for most of the series, with the occasional side venture into some other business, including a movie theater, a circus, a bank, and a radio station, among many others. This collection just barely scratches the surface of this top-notch old-time radio program, which aired from 1933 to 1954. Oh, what a beauty day!

Keep an ear out for Ben Withers (Clarence Hartzell, who played Uncle Fletcher in Vic and Sade).

117.63 [5845] Saved From Oblivion - Dunninger (4/27/14) 28:16

Welcome to another Saved from Oblivion!

Jimbo takes you into his own, hand-picked treasures of old-time radio. He tells you just a bit about the episode and then lets the show do the talking. For brevity, each show will last 40 minutes or less.

Today's show features a program called, Dunninger. Born Joseph Dunninger, this performer blazed a path few took: he was radio's number one mentalist, seer, etc. Despite claiming to debunk spiritualism, he himself performed the same sleight of hand!

He was in league with Houdini and others and is said to be the model for The Shadow! Hoo hoo hoo ha ha ha ha!

This episode comes from 1944.

117.68 [5850] Saved From Oblivion – A L Alexander’s Board of Mediation (4/29/14) 29:57

Welcome to another Saved from Oblivion! Jimbo takes you into his own, hand-picked treasures of old-time radio. He tells you just a bit about the episode and then lets the show do the talking. For brevity, each show will last 40 minutes or less.

In our world, it’s nothing to see mediation on TV. Judge Judy, Judge et al... they are everywhere on the tube. In the 1940’s, shows like this were rare. But there was one show where this exact thing took place: A.L. Alexander’s Mediation Board. However, there’s not just one judge here, but a bevy of mediators. Each has their say.

This episode, in particular, is full of eyebrow-raising sparks, and is kind of shocking for 1943, the year this episode ran. There appears to be a fight or a row of some sort, where there is silence for a half a minute or so while calm can be restored...

118.31 [5887] Chadcast - The Gospel According to St Pong III (5/16/14) 1:03:37

In 1973 a relatively new employee Chad Bowers was tasked with reading the then new Atari company newsletter. This is the final episode.

Atari's in-house newsletter was called The Gospel According to St. Pong.

("Founded in service to the Atari family," read the masthead.) There had been a company-wide contest to come up with a name, and "a committee of Atarians" chose from a list of candidates. Dennis Flinn of the purchasing department was the winner.

Little Cinderella Brown
This episode is in "real time"
The debacle of my old apartment
Moving day on campus
Psychology class
What is National Train Day?
The train station moved!
Face painting
People standing around a car eating chocolate cake
Inside the train station
Unruly parents of opposing Little League team
A few seconds from now

118.33 [5889] Saved From Oblivion - 20 Questions (5/16/14) 30:55

Here's the same game you played as a kid - the animal, vegetable, mineral game, Twenty Questions! It's fun, and these people are experts at it.

A time killer, no doubt, but all in fun. I mention (on the audio) that the show was done in the 1950's, but this episode is in fact actually from 1946.

118.34 [5890] Saved From Oblivion - 21st Precinct (5/17/14) 26:55

People ask me all the time, what's my favorite old radio program after Vic and Sade?

It's a fairly easy choice. The 21st Precinct was a well-written and acted show from the 1950's. It's similar to Dragnet but much better in almost every respect.

Every show began this way: 21st Precinct. It's just lines on a map of the city of New York. Most of the 173,000 people wedged into the nine-tenths of a square mile between Fifth Avenue and the East River wouldn't know, if you asked them, that they lived or worked in the 21st. Whether they know it or not, the security of their persons, their homes, and their property is the job of the men of the 21st.

118.37 [5893] Saved From Oblivion - Dear Adolf (5/18/14) 29:20

WW II brought out the best in most writers it seems, and such is the case with Stephen Vincent Benet, who wrote six letters to Hitler from people from different walks of life, in a dramatic radio series called, “Dear Adolf.”

I present to you two episodes (roughly 14 minutes long, each) that I think you will find engrossing, well-acted and certainly well-written. The first is “Letter from an American Farmer” starring Raymond Massey.The second episode here features acting by Helen Hayes, who was probably the most-respected radio actor of her day, even above actors Orson Welles and that ilk, in “Letter from an American Housewife and Mother”. Both are from 1942.

118.57 [5913] Gunkcast 29: From Primordial Soup... To The Barcode (May 2014) 23:51

So what's exactly happening with Byron so far in 2014? Last time he took the podcast on a bit of an emotional roller coaster, & now he decides to get all philosophical(?)! While this may be some pretty uncharacteristic stuff for Gunkcast, we also strongly feel it is some of the best to come out yet!

So here we find Byron kicking the whole thing off with a bit of a rant on punk fashion (with some help from a certain punk rock icon from the past), which then somehow leads to Byron's theories on evolution, revelations of long-lost music projects, & speculations on just where our final destination will be in the end! (Can it possibly involve a machine-readable code in the form of numbers and a pattern of parallel lines of varying widths??)

Oh, and very noteworthy for this episode is the “secret music” from Byron's past we guarantee you've never heard before! Thanks for listening... cheers!

123.08 [6077] GunkCast 31: In The Fish 2 (September 2014) 1:25:33

If you combine nightmarish train journeys, ballpark tours, & a podcast meetup on the streets of Chicago... it can only mean one thing. Yes it's the return of a famous New Jersey podcaster (along with his son) to Chi-Town for a 2nd live meeting with Byron! We welcome back Manny The Mailman!

So Manny, his son Mike, & Byron reconvene at the same establishment from 2 years ago in attempt to locate the world's most knowledgeable beer server (who the podcasters claim to have met last time). Alas, he is nowhere to be found now...but this does not stop a very eventful meetup over dinner & several brews (with Byron later playing tour guide on a trip to Buckingham Fountain)!

Some conversation topics include the horrifying side of travel via railway, other surprise meetups in the Midwest, the unnecessary re-naming of iconic national landmarks, scaling skyscrapers & arches, how people ever survived before cell phones, listening to celebrity podcasts, well wishes to Doc from Insignificast, talking Trek, many crazy ballpark tales, and how an unfortunate bmx bike accident led to this whole escapade for Manny & his son!

Also (as if this episode couldn't get any better), we feature a very special musical debut for Gunkcast by Mike Fortunato!

As always...please share the love and listen to some of our favorite podcasts at: Static Radio, Special Delivery, Onsug, Paunch Stevenson, & Insignificast!

123.30 [6099] The Paunch Stevenson Show - Episode 250 (9/15/14) 1:10:26

In celebration of our 250th episode, we decided to travel halfway across the world to Africa! There we caught up with our favorite actress Eliza Dushku, and her family, sort of a Dushku family vacation. They began a charitable foundation Thrive Gulu which has setup in Uganda in order to help women recover from a brutal two decade war. Women were left widowed, children orphaned, as a result of the conflict. Uganda was a wonderful country, full of so many friendly, optimistic, and caring people, as well as great food, and natural beauty.

Thanks to friend of the show and YouTube sensation Mike Massé for his amazing cover of “Africa” by Toto. Follow Mike on Twitter @mikemasse and of course his YouTube Channel!

Hey look, we’re in full motion video, cover your eyes! Thank you Eliza, Nate and Judy for coming on the show.

123.41 [6110] Sneaky TT Tonight (September 2014) 31:05:49

Created to air on the Sneaky TT Broadcasting System, Sneaky TT Tonight is over 31 hours, 1,124 tracks of audio clips and songs, drawn from the Other Side of The Overnightscape.

The set is based on the same formula as the Earweird project - clips under 5 minutes, and songs under 2 minutes. In this case, it's ALL the clips from the Other Side meeting these criteria - including duplicates for tracks played more than once on the Other Side.

The result is a seemingly neverending transmission of smoothly weird audio pleasure.

See Other Side Cask notes for more details on these tracks.

125.10 [6159] The Midnight Citizen 103 – “Endgame” (11/7/14) 1:32:49

Join Mike outside on a chilly Saturday night in Birmingham, AL, talking over the sounds of cheering Alabama football fans as the team goes neck-and-neck with LSU. Included in this spoiler-free show is an extensive review of the new, cool movie “Nightcrawler”, and a tease for the new feature to the Midnight Citizen web site, “Camp Friday”. Also, what exactly is the deal with the mysterious Dwell Real Estate Company that’s taken over management of several apartment buildings in his neighborhood?

Music for this episode is “It’s Been a While” by Wade (CC, BY, NC, SA).

126.46 [6228] GunkCast 32: Tales From The Gunkcast Crypt! (October 2014) 1:14:13

The big seasonal celebration returns to the podcast.... Halloween 2014 is here! After a couple year's hiatus, Byron resurrects his scarefest for the podcast. Being that this is his 3rd episode as such (do we hear trilogy?), he decides to pull out all the stops & make this possibly the grandest ghouls night out yet! Of course to do this, he invites some surprise guests on the show to tell their real life tales of terror!

So with this one, you truly get it all... horror, comedy, & a rocking soundtrack (with some great musical contributions from the likes of Letter Seventeen, Khemique, & Immortal Chorus)! We promise... by the end of this outing, you'll literally be screaming for more! Happy Halloween!

Also, please share the love and listen to some of our favorite podcasts at: Static Radio, Special Delivery, Onsug, Letter Seventeen, & Insignificast!

127.07 [6240] Onsug Explorer #1 (1/3/15) 2:00:00

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio - currently over 6,200 tracks, totaling over 251 days of audio. But what's in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute segments, with the last segment of each being what's left, and so less than 5 minutes. Once completed, I had over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what's inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

In this first Onsug Explorer, we hear two hours of segments, with one cross-fading into the next. I really had no idea what to expect, but I really enjoyed listening - and more importantly, it really starts to give a sense of what's inside the Onsug Archive.

For now, this is an experimental show... but hopefully it will lead to new ways of getting people into Onsug, and new ways of exploring it. Let me know what you think.

127.19 [6252] Ramplers #1 (1/9/15) 3:59:56

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio - currently over 6,200 tracks, totaling over 251 days (over 8 months) of audio. But what's in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute segments, with the last segment of each being what's left, and so less than 5 minutes. Once completed, I had over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what's inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

Earlier this week I released the first mix of these clips, called Onsug Explorer. Since then, I've listened to 10+ hours of these random segments, and I've really been enjoying it - I just want to hear more and more. Something new and unexpected every 5 minutes... very compelling...

I decided to rename this project "Ramplers"... and start compiling the clips into 4-hour blocks. This one in particular really blew me away - that's why I chose it to be Ramplers #1.

Let me know what you think...

127.42 [6275] The Night Pool #1 (1/20/14) 3:59:26

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio - currently over 6,200 tracks, totaling over 251 days (over 8 months) of audio. But what's in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute clips, resulting in over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what's inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

This is the third, and hopefully final, name for this project. I started off a few weeks ago calling it "Onsug Explorer", and then about a week later I changed the name to "Ramplers". Both these names implied a kind of guide or reference tool for the world of the "ramplers" (hosts) of The Overnightscape Underground. I tried various tests where I hosted and commented on the clips - but it didn't feel right and was a huge amount of work. And while eventually I would like to embark on such a project, I don't have the resources to do it right now. But I do love listening to these random clips - so I decided to use a name that's been bouncing around Onsug since at least 2010 - "The Night Pool".

The Night Pool is just like drifting though all these random thoughts and ideas, soundscapes and songs, conversations and rants... no hosting, no context... just a pleasant swim though the humble weirdness of Onsug...

127.58 [6291] The Night Pool #2 (1/27/14) 3:56:57

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio – currently over 6,200 tracks, totaling over 251 days (over 8 months) of audio. But what’s in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute clips, resulting in over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what’s inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

The Night Pool is just like drifting though all these random thoughts and ideas, soundscapes and songs, conversations and rants... no hosting, no context... just a pleasant swim though the humble weirdness of Onsug...

129.04 [6358] The Night Pool #7 (3/3/15) 3:57:13

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio - currently over 6,200 tracks, totaling over 251 days (over 8 months) of audio. But what's in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute clips, resulting in over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what's inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

The Night Pool is just like drifting though all these random thoughts and ideas, soundscapes and songs, conversations and rants... no hosting, no context... just a pleasant swim though the humble weirdness of Onsug...

129.24 [6378] The Night Pool #9 (3/17/15) 3:58:37

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio - currently over 6,200 tracks, totaling over 251 days (over 8 months) of audio. But what's in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute clips, resulting in over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what's inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

The Night Pool is just like drifting though all these random thoughts and ideas, soundscapes and songs, conversations and rants... no hosting, no context... just a pleasant swim though the humble weirdness of Onsug...

129.45 [6399] The Night Pool #11 (3/31/15) 3:59:01

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio - currently over 6,200 tracks, totaling over 251 days (over 8 months) of audio. But what's in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute clips, resulting in over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what's inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

The Night Pool is just like drifting through all these random thoughts and ideas, soundscapes and songs, conversations and rants... no hosting, no context... just a pleasant swim through the humble weirdness of Onsug...

130.19 [6419] The Frank Nora Time Machine Hosted by Jimbo 1 (4/9/15) 46:10

Welcome to The Frank Nora Time Machine (hosted by Jimbo)

Laugh along with Jimbo as he treats us to the best all-time bits of Frank Nora. Some of these bits last seconds, some a few minutes... but none of them last 275 days - (roughly the time it would take someone to listen to every Frank Nora story.)

Frank has fascinating stories, commutes and works in a great city, enjoys odd snacks; meanwhile that crazy Jimbo character adds some of his own comments and will pull a rabbit out his wide-brimmed hat at times.

This is truly a one-of-a-kind show. If you don't think so, please ask for a refund at the window.

j.Catchy theme "music", j.an introduction to this show, from The Overnightscape #1 (3/27/03): f.fake blood,

130.21 [6421] The Frank Nora Time Machine - Hosted by Jimbo - 002 (4/11/15) 47:51

Welcome to The Frank Nora Time Machine (hosted by Jimbo)

Laugh along with Jimbo as he treats us to the best all-time bits of Frank Nora. Some of these bits last seconds, some a few minutes... but none of them last 275 days - (roughly the time it would take someone to listen to every Frank Nora story.)

Frank has fascinating stories, commutes and works in a great city, enjoys odd snacks; meanwhile that crazy Jimbo character adds some of his own comments and will pull a rabbit out his wide-brimmed hat at times.

FROM The Overnightscape #4 (4/3/03): Annoying soldiers, incense review, ignorant about tea, I DON'T TRUST NOBODY, smoking a pipe, looting could be cool

FROM The Overnightscape #5 (4/10/03) Bad haircut, mental problems?, depressing-cough-hello, Frontier Desperados/Third Lieutenant Stanley

FROM The Overnightscape #6 (4/17/03) Actually, the Dreamland phones system/Vic Sade Rush call long distance, Yoko Ono, walking around airports at night, (edited review of Monie Love's "Monie in the Middle")

FROM The Overnightscape #7 (4/24/03) Crazy dancing dude, Monica Lewinsky is talentless, global warming/cigar, 'my seat' on the bus, dandruff, annoying pandemics, bad names for diseases, patching out

All music by Jimbo, (c) 2015 - all lefts reversed

130.42 [6442] The Frank Nora Time Machine - Hosted by Jimbo - 006 (4/22/15) 51:50

Welcome to The Frank Nora Time Machine (hosted by Jimbo)

Laugh along with Jimbo as he treats us to the best all-time bits of Frank Nora. Some of these bits last seconds, some a few minutes... but none of them lasts 263 days - (roughly the time it would take someone to listen to every Frank Nora story.)

Frank has fascinating stories, commutes and works in a great city, reviews malls, odd snacks and drinks; meanwhile that crazy Jimbo character adds some of his own comments and will pull a rabbit out his wide-brimmed hat at times.

Introduction, from The Overnightscape #22 (8/7/03) Metro Park Train Station, hard cider/v.card games, bad car-parker

From The Overnightscape #23 (8/14/03) chili cheese karma

From The Overnightscape #24 (8/21/03) dream about sushi and hospital/v.hospital, school play as a "flower"/v.ditto

From The Overnightscape #25 (8/28/03) meteor showers and donuts/J, psychic meeting place, time travel thoughts/v.four year-old unopened letter, Jimbo says "bye"

130.48 [6448] GunkCast 34: Technology Creeps & Roadshow 2 (April 2015) 37:59

We are back with our long awaited 1st show of 2015! This time Byron starts off on the streets of Chicago going on a bit of a rant on the current era of technology, but then does a 180 & takes a surprise road journey South (& for the 2nd time in the history of the podcast). He just can’t shake the overarching technology theme here as it seems to take on a mind of it’s own & follow him all the while! As you can expect, Byron kept his recorder rolling for the whole adventure which is presented here for your audio pleasure.

Also listen for another rocking soundtrack featuring a Curmudgeon classic & a new Gunk U.K. tune which Byron debuts in a special exclusive in-studio performance (a hint that you should stick around to the very end of this one)! What more can you ask for in a show? Cheers!

Note: As promised in this episode, I am including this link (<http://yedies.blogspot.com/2013/11/the-mouse-goes-rfid.html>) for some further interesting info on something we encountered on our journey... which also should further your own technology creeps! Thanks again for tuning in!

130.51 [6451] The Night Pool #15 (4/28/15) 3:55:47

Take a deep dive into The Overnightscape Underground (Onsug) Archive...

Onsug is a massive collection of audio – currently over 6,400 tracks, totaling over 263 days (over 8.5 months) of audio. But what’s in the archive? What does it sound like?

I chopped each audio track into 5-minute clips, resulting in over 75,000 of these segments. By playing them in random order, we can deeply explore what’s inside the archive, to get an idea of what it contains.

The Night Pool is just like drifting through all these random thoughts and ideas, soundscapes and songs, conversations and rants... no hosting, no context... just a pleasant swim through the humble weirdness of Onsug...
