The Pro from Dover – 01 (7/16/12) 50:00 [801]

Welcome a new show to The Overnightscape Underground… The Pro from Dover, with scottlo!

A life in flux and a looming major transition can only mean one thing for the Pro from Dover, turn on the digital recorder and tell the world all about it. Hopefully these little unscripted updates will find find friendly ears among the onsug faithful.

The musical bit of music at the end is from Javolenus and is called Rocky GTR chords. It comes from ccMixter.org and is offered under Attribution Noncommercial 3.0 CC licensing.

The Pro from Dover – 02 (7/19/12) 1:02:30 [801]

Installment 2 of the Pro from Dover series features audio responses to PQ's latest Bug Out episode and the debut of Mike's awesome Twin Peaks Adventure project. There's also a very dubious chain of coincidental connection drawn between Scarecrow from Wizard of Oz to Henry Spencer of Eraserhead via Dick Van Dyke's brother Jerry. Also discussed are steganography, animated GIFs, roller derby, The Goldbergs, and Google + Hangouts.

The Pro from Dover – episode 3 (8/16/12) 45:11 [801]

Still waiting for travel documents and dealing with a series of setbacks, The Pro from Dover returns with installment three. Public domain literary works mentioned at various points during the recording were Jack London's "The Jacket" (or Star Rover), "A Week in Waterloo in 1815" by Lady Magdelane De Lancey, Herman Melville's "Typee." Also mentioned, though not public domain, was Anne Lamott's "Bird by Bird."
Between recording and transmission of this episode, the visa and work permit were approved. The next chapter will be beginning forthwith.

The Pro From Dover - Episode 04 (10/22/12) 1:34:03 [801]

This fourth and final installment of The Pro from Dover is part of an audio project that began in July. The three previous recordings were all released on The Overnightscape Underground. At the time there was a reason for not posting the audio through the Scottlo Radio Blog but for the life of me, I can"t now remember what the reason was.

Looking back, I remember the excitement I found in discovering a community of like-minded audio enthusiasts. I continue to enjoy listening to recordings put out by several of the ONSUG people and hope to be able to begain participating in P.Q. Ribber"s fun and awesome weekly Overnightscape Central program.

But as evidenced by this current recording which was recorded over a period of three months in three different continents, I don"t know whether or not I"ll be able to produce any audio with any degree of regularity. I"m finding that things remain up in the air.

As mentioned above, this will be the final Pro From Dover episode. The orginal premise to document a series of transitions was a bit muddled to begin with. And now that those transitions have been gotten trough, undocumented for the most part, there seems to be no point to continue under this label. I must confess, as a small satisfaction, that I was able to salvage enough audio from certain moments over this period to minimally fulfill the orginal premise.

Looking ahead, I continue to wonder what to do next on the web - with audio or otherwise. Personally, I"m really tired with the unscripted rambling that I"ve done for the past several years. Sometimes something listenable results but most times not so much. I think I"ve got a couple of pretty compelling project ideas. If I can pull something together, it will get posted here.

Until then, thanks for listening and please stand by.

scottlo calling - episode 001 (10/28/12) 1:19:08 [801]

I hadn"t realized that my first podcast, Tokyo Calling, began eight years ago this month until I was recording the opening segment of my new podcast: scottlo calling. It seems like a lifetime ago. And in many ways, it was.

So here I am in a new place with a new job and starting a new life and am compelled to again experiment with audio.

I"m afraid I don"t feel similarly compelled to write extensive show notes at present. It seems best to let listeners, if any, figure out what this is and what it"s about. I will however try to post relevant web links when appropriate.

The song played during the podcast was created by dlusionz and can be found on Sound Cloud and is titled Dreaming of the Middle East.

The book mentioned at a couple of points during the episode is "The Phenomenon of Man" and was written by Pierre Teilhard de Chardin.

scottlo calling – episode 002 (11/1/12) 59:21 [801]

Those who are willing and able to listen to this hour-long recording will get to hear how a Chinese knock-off of a classic Sony transistor radio came into my possession recently. The episode also features a few recordings of a local radio station that were picked up with said recorder. And finally there is my effort to describe what the terrestrial radio cross-casting ds106 radio assignment, as alluded to in the previous blog post, might entail.

scottlo calling – episode 003 (11/8/12) 1:04:33 [801]

A couple of days ago it seemed there wouldn't be a next episode of scottlo calling. It felt as if there was nothing left to talk about. And then curious things began to happen.

First there was a blog post from Radio Errols about receiving a recent news paper from Japan's Kyodo news service via fax that led me to a cool old internet project.

Then while thinking about animated GIFs of exploding microwave ovens, I unexpectedly heard about the chance discovery that resulted from a Zagnut bar that melted in Percy Sinclair's pocket.

And before you could "Stand clear and keep your eye on the ball" 64 minutes of audio presented itself in mp3 format for your listening enjoyment.

scottlo calling – episode 004 (11/15/12) 56:09 [801]

In the course of recording this tribute to yesterday's mega-news about the word of the year (the verb form of GIF), an important and disorienting insight flashed in my mind's eye like the reflection of a neon gas station sign rippling across a puddle of spilled petrol on the pavement as the country radio station crackles from the office in the first moments after sunset on a warm and humid late summer evening. The insight being that the process of recording these wandering wonderings is not unlike the process of assembling an animated GIF. But then again, it's not entirely the same either.

Beyond that, everything else remains for the listener to discover in due course.

A Career In The Weeklies

2003-2005
Created by Marc Gorcey

A Career In The Weeklies was created by Marc Gorcey in Toronto, Canada. It was released on Toronto-based Internet radio station UMFM.net, from 2003 to 2005.

I was a fan of the series - it left a big impression on me. But a few years later, I noticed it was no longer available online. So I contacted Marc Gorcey, and he gave me permission to re-release the show, so that more people would be able to experience it.

I am very happy to be able to present this show to you here on The Overnightscape Underground.

--Frank Edward Nora, September 23, 2013

A Career In The Weeklies is a comedic soap opera adventure mystery.

Our hero is Eric Shea, a layabout and secretly asexual drinker who finds himself charmed into the exciting world of Toronto's weekly press. The charmer is a white-suited devil-tongued rascal by the name of Johnny Whispers.

Johnny and Eric meet in a Queen Street bar, and quickly strike up a friendship. Johnny explains that he plans to launch an explosive new newspaper called The Anti-News Weekly - a paper specifically designed to enrage the population of Toronto. He and his sidekick/companion Katrenkia Von Washing Machine convince Eric to follow them into their mad vision.

Johnny seems to have lived everywhere, done everything, and is currently in withdrawal from a severe Gravol dependency. His word is not to be trusted, but he's never had a dull moment in his entire life.

Katrenkia obsesses over Johnny, and pines for the time they spent in the Peruvian jungle together living off of guinea pig meat and wearing guinea pig leather. Eventually her overpowering shame drives her to nail herself into a wooden box of self-denial.

Eric drinks, frets that the secret of his asexuality will come out, worries about losing his mind, and works his ass off for the Anti-News Weekly.

Along the way, they meet such characters as SuperBeth the Kung Fu lawyer, Ace and Krystal the missile-firing potheads, Dave the reluctant porn merchant, slimy Member of Parliament Steve Curtis, and - of course - Baby Coco the lottery winning one year old.

Cast Bios:

Marc Gorcey - Marc is the writer and creater of A Career in the Weekles, owing to to his fondness of old radio serials. He is a scientist, currently conducting experiments for the Institute of Comedy Research (ICR). His findings and discussion in many other areas of interest can be found on his website, CokeandPepsi.com and hosts a monthly .

Universal Sea - Sea owns and operates UMFM.net and Universal Metropolis, among many other media-related enterprises. Sea has been into acting and music from an early age and appeared in numerous stage productions in Singapore & Burlington. These days you can find him on Internet radio with his weekly Sea@Night Friday night music variety show and alone with his thoughts and guitar on the shitter.

Jessica VanDusen - Jess runs the Visual Stimulus design site and forum. She currently works as a multimedia developer and is acting editor of U-Magazine.com, UM's online magazine and forum for news and other popular items of discussion.

Tim Vant - Trained at Grant MacEwan College in musical theatre, Tim went on to study improvisation at The Second City. After his wrongful dismissal from the Institute for Comedy Research (ICR), Tim was the 2003 recipient of the coveted "Rat Wheel" award. He owes much credit and in fact his life to world renowned dancer and cellist Olaf Piederson. Without Olaf's help Tim would never have broken into Internet radio.

The Anti-News Weeky is dedicated to provoking the masses from their long and fitful sleep. It shall succeed by positioning itself exactly 180 degrees from the popular opinion and broadcasting its opinions loudly and directly into the ears and eyes of those who don't want to listen. It shall destroy the inane, eviscerate the beloved, descecrate the sacred. It is necessary to destroy in order to create, and nothing begs for destruction more than the stale, palid hopes and imaginations of the common people. God save Toronto.

Bat Therapy - New Old World Panacea
batThe oldest recorded bat is the little brown bat, at 34 years old. Nineteen species of bats are found in Canada. At least 6 of these are on the Endangered Species List, many others (nearly 40%) are classified as threatened, rare, or status undetermined

Marc Gorcey's radio comedy/drama takes its listeners on a worldwide adventure of mystery, intrigue, and weird controversy to the brink of major cities rioting.

SITFUSO

2000–2005
By Charles Daniels & Israel Brown

SITFUSO Compendium (2000–2005) [released 3/16/25] 2:32:16 [1008]

Comedy audio show SITFUSO, by Charles Daniels and Israel Brown, has been mentioned innumerable times on my show, The Overnightscape, and I'm thrilled to finally add it to the Onsug Radio archive in the form of this compendium. Israel Brown was a stalwart listener and contributor in the early days of The Overnightscape. He was a guest on the show several times (twice with Charles Daniels), and in more recent years he's appeared on Overnightscape Central and The Exit Ramp.

The absurd, surreal, and (at times very) adult-oriented humor of SITFUSO, in the vein of Monty Python and The Goon Show, is a unique example of pre-podcasting original audio content on the Internet. Many thanks to Israel for giving the go-ahead to add it to the archive.

This compendium contains all 6 regular epsiodes, the Christmas Special, and a bonus Introductory Piece. SITFUSO's website is still up and running, at sitfuso.com, and contains a great deal of additional information about the show. You can find more of Charles' work at whoguide.com.

Enjoy!

– Frank Edward Nora, 3/16/25

INTRODUCTION (from sitfuso.com):
SITFUSO is a comedic audio programme created by Charles Daniels which is available for streaming/download over the internet. The name of the show comes from the well known computer term GIGO, "Garbage In, Garbage Out." It was adapted by Israel Brown in his frustration with his computer into the new term SITFUSO, "Shit In, Totally Fucked Up Shit Out." Charles Daniels fell in love with the term and thus it came to his mind to use this coinage of Israel's as the title for the programme.

THE SITFUSO CAST (from sitfuso.com):
Charles Daniels: Creator of SITFUSO and lord of the "wheelie things". Definitely not a real Police officer of any kind. Israel Brown: Script Editor, Web Designer, Audio Engineer, etc. Be sure that you don't get within reach of this man. Andrew Hobbs: Jim, Sketch Writer, Other stuff. Probably would kill me (if I didn't live 3 states away) for using this picture because he normally looks a lot better. Claire Daniels: The Women and Hitler. She married Charles. I think that about sums up her sanity.

CONTENTS:

[0:00:00] SITFUSO 001 – Masterpiece by Default (12/8/00) 22:13 – The touching story of Omegaville, its people, and their leader. Listen as the Great Narrator toys with people's lives and reveals dark secrets! Written by: Charles Daniels. Starring: Charles Daniels, Andrew Hobbs, Israel Brown, and Claire Daniels.

[0:22:13] SITFUSO 002 – Gates of Delirium (4/20/01) 20:37 – Four months in the making… Many hours spent meticulously scrutinizing and editing sound files… It sure doesn't sound that way! Welcome to HELL – SITFUSO Style. Written by: Charles Daniels & Andrew Hobbs. Starring: Charles Daniels, Claire Daniels, Andrew Hobbs, and Israel Brown.

[0:42:49] SITFUSO 003 – Pair a' Dice (1/18/02) 21:10 – God created our world in 7 days. It's taken us more than 37 times as long to create this 20 minute episode! What does that say about us? We're fucking lazy! Written by: Chris Rednour, Charles Daniels, & Andrew Hobbs. Starring: Charles Daniels, Israel Brown, Andrew Hobbs, and Claire Daniels.

[1:03:59] SITFUSO 004 – Hungarian Death Machine (6/28/02) 26:13 – His desire was to make something that would change the world. However, like most visionaries, he got screwed. Find out what the hell I'm talking about in this new 30% LONGER episode! Written by: Charles Daniels. Starring: Charles Daniels, Israel Brown, Andrew Hobbs, and Claire Daniels. With: Brian Shields

[1:30:11] SITFUSO 005 – Life is Suffering (3/13/03) 25:40 – Everybody has that one friend in their life that selflessly gives advice, based on his interpretation of Buddhism and life experiences, to help shape and guide their future… don't they? Well, these are a few stories told by one such friend. Written by: Charles Daniels, Andrew Hobbs, and Chris Rednour. Starring: Charles Daniels, Andrew Hobbs, Israel Brown, and Claire Daniels.

[1:55:51] SITFUSO – Special 2003 Christmas (12/24/03) 7:23 – It's Christmas time, and this is our present to all of our beloved SIT'Heads! ENJOY! Written by: Charles Daniels. Starring: Charles Daniels, Andrew Hobbs, Israel Brown.

[2:03:14] SITFUSO –006 – Approach the Goat (10/21/05) 19:45 – And you thought we quit doing SITFUSO! Here's a new episode starring Finn Clark. His awesome talent just makes our bad acting seem even worse than usual! Yay! ?? Written by: Charles Daniels, Andrew Hobbs, and Finn Clark. Starring: Fin Clark, Charles Daniels, Israel Brown, Andrew Hobbs, Claire Daniels.

BONUS:

[2:22:59] SITFUSO – Introductory Piece (2000–2002) 9:15 – Made from segments of the first four episodes.

Hemidawn the racer, cracks the demishock of morn coursing through the dim. And into the arch of the former is the nixter, and for never the corner is the yarster. This is the ne design of the crying. Empty in derivation, and less on the keys than in the eye, heavy ngers upon the board, lane adored in dream. Found a pond and liked it.

To you, o master of nothing, I bequeath this feather of entity. Find it near the hollow waterwheels. Go then foolish man and seek your struggle. My gift to you is plague. My wish, fall. Neverbeginning, the simple rivertrickle dandy in its whistle. The day has come, but very long for you.

Neither the trowel nor the dame are languid. Look, the state of night far college drive. See, the girlfriend is just barely a friend, young nightmare. In sleep I know I think. A daze is my only seen in a mall with a games are good. No pretend car!

Ponder sorts of emotions in malls, ee my construct, and eat a cake from a shelf. For the stone, I, the solid liquid, never before decided a fate as temporary as this. In ways, I terminate this building, paint a good sign. Please groove forever, my lusty love, for the good grain, bulbous, holy, and blasting, stems twigs as I walk along, can’t compare to your form. A mathematician in a parking lot, inside the blankety-blank heat of her station wagon. Regard the silly nakedness of her yawn. If I wanna kick a door open, I’ll do it.

Anydaze will do cool focus mornings. So the waterfall falls and the window down a road. Even in the evening, I corral a lot of fears and load them into a revolver and re into the vast wheat elds of the occult, and delight in such a wonderful display of courage on the part of my dazzle. Now there near those woods special spirits patrol highways. Gone into the haze of dusk he chessed out, as a battler. Pawns are a good thing, but a nother way. Minions of mine are silly, but docile. Never unremember unlimber simmer for the tea!

Lazy day and odd sun. Nine little pebbles remote in a vast deserted parking lot huddle together, speaking in relaxed whispers, having a little meeting. The clouds come. Thunder the darkening sky. Air the prime raindrops blossom forth in deluge collapsing onto the pavement. And the nine little pebbles have a little drink.

Dank blended heart, pleasing all morons in matters of a airs of the bit match smoldering in saliva sanguinely. Less else is nonsense to snare. Bareful bugs in neat supple vim. College caterwaul, blaming of the vane. Stupid awards in afternoon breezes.

Needed the tea am imsy's. Trash the airport meadow. This, matter thru wonder, dazed weaver's undisaster. The drive rules, highway driving in cool weather.

Through grass-lined corridors of caramel steel, helmet of wood and carbonated milk. A sharp loud noise in the bookstore, mind blurring. Melting into the arms of girl night. In pungent brightness she walked. I was crazy on co ee and ate candy. So many choices in mine mad matter, so simple and clear. Watching a television in a hotel room, drinking a can of soda in a hotel room. The air is chill. The lights are cool.

Born, met with traces, gone, full of space. Cold ceramic oracle, tickle my lowers, shower my cowls. Hail to the many ways and days of the typesetter. And the fortune of our e ort is the wheel we always hear, humming in the dark vapor of the basement, a cold testimony to the electric jello that is our life. And for all the majesty of mind, for where the oldest tree clings to dust, we are now, and forever never, to abandon the avor, and indeed savor, the water we drink.

A college hallway from before? Before me? Where exactly is this today, anyway? Wheel, see ya later. Be in delusion my friend, forget the best in everything. Time has come to do some speaking. No evening out in the end. Landscapes like to annoy you. Many folks who're too similar are gathering around me. Pretend to be yourself, smell a pine tree, eat some M&M's. Gloop mergers in Cleveland's occult shops. A formula be i y at best. I need her doorwayish way.

But the matter is esoteric and not of this road.

The co ee of your dreams is a medicated version of tan venom avored highway gook. Try some sopping dry heavy popcorn in that damn chest of drawers. Breathe in vacuum lumber. The forecast is for rain, early at times. Suck the ammonia vent, my love. Forest crap frash delect mixim colder pennant cacophony whillip. Crows are fringe beasts of roadside perception—highway mystery birds—come and swallow this moth smear o my poor windshield, ne jackdaw! Please become very disenchanted with that cruller.

SIZZLE—for formulas are dead, and science is stripped, and reality is mad as a ower. Corrupt as my ancestor sailed, he played childish games, equal to motion to pinball the secret. Shallow bread dunk in murky stagnant brack, the tired arithmetic splattered on hallway walls, super logic durable.

This, the dream behind the dream, the real dream scarcely we ever see.

Bad banjo noise in cop car 5. None of your malarkey, Joe. Sinning regularly at gasoline-havens, wimping out at the slightest-boom. 135 unwed sweeties for smoochy. Catch a falling tar monger, Ted. Being a feather, I have no opinion. Being a diner owner, I cry always, in the rain, in the thunder nights, and lightning Dave went home too late—it wasn't there.

I area to deeply voice a booming call.

Being thus in this befuddled transit, every time a new challenge, every time a new disaster. At highwayside's edge, my room is silent and still. At highwayside's edge, hands together so tightly, the freezing cursive tea. Neverending in driving around, I hacksaw my memory and curse the setting sun. A lazy heavy machine will sashay and loving mates may depart on railways unreal and of unshackled concordance.

Pretty moon, dark dangerous road. Pretty eld, dark dangerous house. Pretty river, dark dangerous dam. Pretty road, dark dangerous river.

Wondering heavier than usual night alive I'm swept I'm deter the mind. From southwest departings, how fuse a fuses, in rst of fur stroke on face. Freight set the rare object down upon my desk if you will. Set it down my fair companion, set it down, a mug of ery goop for you!

Apartment's a jester, I said, the real superstreet wasn't in the dream, it was in the what was the eld. And cannot a contrary local anybody evil a store corner in plural goad empathy? Steel, the metal amazing, structures wonderful rails and tides of portables, crush negative. Dim lit acreage soon hummed in agitation—girls of ags in gales were expected—but were late.

Dire rail train you, pull to here in stat megatons of water! Felling to enter and become, wait and the dark fence. Like the mischief of the driver, truly in the bliss of okay either way! The true ward of carelessness is brandiness, the blond braids of honor and hyperdesire. Create the bornage of hell life, in the airport of mind time. Target in teamness, never at all!

That is what is my thoughting what draft.

Unearth some ancient fried eggs. Are you not a famous scientist? Several corrosive acids will melt your hat. The Johnny the Mouse idea stinks. Bow down and worship your least favorite chair. Meditate on this—your dam is a coot. Look for eaglets in your shoes. Damn the sprig of medicinal plastique—yours is a non-holistic path.

An annoying stranger will ask you for a ride to Pittsburgh. Don't try to nd the roller coaster—it will nd you. Stare at anything but a wheat eld or a tetrahedron. Devise 106 uses for an unpopular adverb. Please hover above a local vegetable garden. You just ripped two relatively useless bags in half.

Will I decide to go to the o ce tonight—NOW THAT'S FUNNY—now that was years ago. Be at the Pathmark in Parsippany tonight, be at the 7-11 in Summit tonight, be at the Dunkin' Donuts in Madison tonight, be at the Evil Farm in North Branch tonight. Motionblack supramazing Route 80 tonight. Travel along and not a screech to a halt in sight, the spinning to silky so lovely the magic the twisting the gliding the shatter no matter the doors. Back in time, the sleep, the insanity, the manic drivings. Back in time, the years wasted, the centuries gained. But time—it goes pastfast. WELL THE ROAD to D.C., Montreal, Woodbridge, Mountain Lakes, Jersey City, into the that's tact.

Being that wonder is slight, going all along the day midwall, the corporeal stab is the your sense. Building is the same, in a wane, in the stay, to over gas stations. Can we all mall? Snow aw car, the day of the eatery's salad bar super tray. For the nice domed window above I call home, and a book on magic at the library is under a roof in the rain. Can all this be? Twis sury.

Waking in late afternoon, mind pummelled with horrible dream, lounging in avoidance, dark thinking in shower. Drying in personal nakedness, the late afternoon is tired, the late afternoon is slow. I'm lethargic when I awake in this time. Shall I go to the store, shall I go to the library, shall I awaken from the late afternoon.

Who are you, fraught with frivol and it? I need to do it and you desire it. Please, below meaning, don't discover honesty or friendliness. Comfortable and nude in a blanket cozy and warm, the smell of Wheatena and a little Swiss Army knife and a bird outside sounds like a dot matrix printer. Remember this, the good arcade there, time and co ee daydreamica. What has happened here?

All the wonderful days at black-and-white. Rush of much, scamper the stung spirits, we longed for the designs of good nowheres. New pleasing plunder the fairy night shaken, in me the time of tinglement torn, in you the awe of nascent strength. Long blended parts of weeks, never to the doorway's beauties. And in these magni cent insecurities were the truths the bridges, for in the candle icker of dusk, everthere these two, less long than a birdsong.

Serious wanton twain, storm torn in tortion, the bell.

This is not the train it was!

Sometime devastation well a year forever is just fake.

Depiction of tiger in web? No problem.

Relate whistling Dixie to your viewpoint on the primeval forest. Bizarre crystal formations on your left wrist are not uncommon. The roar of a jet engine and the shriek of a priest sound the same to you. Bees don't live in a cave! Be wary as you sit stunned watching the construction equipment perform a ballet. The shrike is your main avian. Flip your relatives. Use an arc welding device to damage your toilet.

Bother, Imher the rail guy.

Not that the day wasn't the best, but these exciting stimulants rule.

This is most unexisting voltage the porridge be God nude haphazards a hell spry goop snoozings fusing dupe a both a shamble screwer do not enter please do not enter.

Eat little Swiss Army knives in a bowl of milk for breakfast. Adopt a rhombus. Fondle the abrasive surface of an obsidian grave, if you will. Wear an undershirt made of coral and tobacco. Enter unto the mallard's den. See the kerosine welding brat. Relax and delve into the general issue of destruction. You're gneiss.

Aside, low maker of imsia! To your spot! Don't deny the icebreaker of wonder, the creator of the best of it. Times has come, in a boat, dangerous since in a dream, but carrying real items. This is got to stop. And the night glimpsed in a time a life or two ago but it de nitely points to time travel.

Cabinet of corners, folder of wild: seldom said the main walkway is hallway—try and retreat from a oor sleeping rug as these. Truly, into is a great. Because, taken into account for a warring elusive enjoyment, I was in bliss when it was along at speeds. Hey? You aren't the one! Go'on, get outta here!

Going through a rain highway I said was a goal and a fair romance. Free in a clearing were bolt haven the corner mazen. And the in the day was ne, and in mine and is cure.

Letter never, I was here to deceive thee, the mask robont. Meet the ve bears: Lacquer-1119, Spelunker-181, Hood-8, Prisoner-91, Jackdaw-41552. A tenseness in the light rain forming the image of a squirrely lass in the park in the 1970s.

Sitting uncomfortable beachy chair arm slick—sun hot nostril, bitter sensation chest, a apping language for the tinny mistress of the thought. Coin for machine, deserted fair. Chomp into poison chair, nails horns in solids above. Slow damn, see the setting optic sun.

That hay not under, and what a was wonder, a who in the an is. Liken with highfriend and wrendon the frame—whey overdrench headblaze of logic cumulate frost of lapis on a some pipes. The clinkerbuilt civet cat is brooding under the porch, lapstrake in fur bobbin her blu .

Use the best pancake emblem, if you will. Have a public servant touch your knee.

Drave is the with the tools for it. What was an extreme driving was now nothing.

Formerest the day one return, line a time in everyful killy. Of the one road I was along, say the way it is like a structuran. The leap of the true can trail all with the hark of a sharp bird, a say. My impressions justice of the what is no preserva, into free dear tours. What is up there I wonders.

The radar echo would indicate lifeheat. Then I watched as the building, an o ce plaza, was blasted to rumble by an grenadier in shiny plastic white armor. His nemesis was gameshowhost. Just kidding, his nemesis was Roosevelt.

Slabjolt me, night. I am funny in a way of hannipost. I am a stinger, they said, I am unwelder. A vague open highway from a dream or from some reality beyond my dreams. Dark, maybe rainy, a lit skyscraper in the distance. I declare?

Under the way, a friendly odd place, where broken colorful glass is there, and a land of friends is there, and a land of animals. The rainy reality system's gift, a many-aspect question, for the bright kids of yestermore. Just a slant crossing, just a bare react-fashion, just the former three, or four if you prefer. I was never grouped under those who pretend, but here all is lost, Emma.

And it's a hunting. It's a knockout. Fan and random we ambled, and came upon an area funny. The darkness not under back a little, and all of us were frightening. Can this be reconciled, this days? Time travel is an option. Reality systems can'ts betrays evernessity. Lords of Uncontrol, we, nevery and quite silly. But all I want is the picture.

Slore, I said, amn't I the best?

Force only that street, force apjack, force mess moss up, force imps disassembling churches, force the bemuser devasta sleep, force Canada's cathode, force seen western soul beader, force deviant poise.

This day this disaster. Not in the maze of a life, but the bane of a company. Black orange now in windy yesterdays. These are the days of sleep.

Talk we merry, bus was merry, spark. Ending away, and I liked it, and a phone call mall.

Surroundings collapsing, perceptions folding, eerie fog for real this time.

Pleases all at let's say you were in a stations. Rise on the way haze, he well wandards.

Of the set of all tentiharnabins is a set of all snake-loome. In that yet and hut that and going. Who wants such pointer? Only Varnishiana and.

Where is the time I was into? Where is the time I was into. Moved in suproccult may hem the daughter. Seeking in the dark day matters little.

Be at overpass, dammit. Geese are independent.

Our feelings for others are not good! Play pinball, widow! Up and insert through rain slamming the late afternoon! Like drinking paper—not a funny joke! To be here all day—not too likely! I think I can remember some of it!

Slanting tint the sine, torrid at damp shackle. A blurry ash a rush of cartography, sevening nining lightninged. So silent city outskirt in silhouette, clangings forlorn into worn wall. Above the city it's goodnight in the night to meet the blasted incongruity hence, roaring with rafters befallen. Smile the lowly autochthon, feeling nerveshot octagon. Many an amazing crash pad anarchy, peace of the turnpike in night's minutes, forgetting so much more.

And wasn't many innit a reandy hats? Ah, knowing some jear?

Give what a earlian dense and is many. Cartoon is walrus. The disks of sylphs. Duskdrives ca eine on the highways around Mountain Lakes.

Was an early guy in a cat suit by the restaurant on ve cool?

Far, the drain stone lighten. Concrete mantas in parking lot. How'd it crash, that bright hypercycle of loony. How'd it crash—I'd been away, I'd say. So stand lightly the porch and fail to fresh-cut grass and fail to helicopter.

Shiester Dude, as your fame your handhold pal? I was—sitting at my table, and from out of nowhere a warrior tiny panda popped into my hand, and what he said annoyed me some. "I thought I'd seen the last of you ugly giants."

React, lumbore, to my insane attack, Jared.

Fianly, you amuse me. For when the black, dark gray, red, yellow and green chariota took us to Benningford, the fog revealed your lifejoke—Liopis!

Ever thorn, and in embrace? Driving, night rain, city in distance. Into overarcades and ultrathrill. Follow down hallways the inviso heroes you adored, old memory. Clobber the job dumb. Me, I'm a one, not in Florida at all.

Door, now this is a good one! I am at a train station. My way was truer if delayed, I'd say. Grander bastardizing passing and shaping the entire landscape fake letter nevpunck.

And we can begin to see the light of day's night. Tender is the day—blender is the night. So, if all else fails, we can be the waterfall for a while. Bast, cat bitch. Just one kiss.

Please hover in blissful verisimilitude with sordid freedoms and the sender. Forever hindered on the darkened entrances as the ever well-de ned whorl contains the exploding tumult, in grouchy planar scorch, the endgame-mind walks. And rodent walks.

Nine Pebble Detector on! The Nine Pebble Detectors team is on the move, in Wintercindie's Balinese hovercraft, with Magic Smup driving. No one knows the true origin of Magic Smup. Some say he was a garden gnome stolen by college students, and was brought to life in the dorm by watching the rst episode of The Larry Sanders Show, on Betamax, where Larry does a live commercial for the Garden Weasel. Lazy day and odd sun, nine little pebbles, remote in a vast, deserted parking lot, huddle together, speaking in relaxed whispers, having a little meeting. The call has gone out to many super teams – must nd the parking lot and separate the nine pebbles, moving them as far apart as possible, before it rains. Wet pebbles have a mind to deal in mischief on a cosmic scale. Doctor Almost relaxes in the hovercraft break room, enjoying a cache of precious spoils from a recent time travel mission – smoking Moonlight Tobacco Politix cigarettes, drinking Fruitopia The Grape Beyond from his beloved Mannheim Steamroller Cinnamon Hot Chocolate mug, and playing Flea Devil Solitaire. He'd been a foot messenger in NYC, delivering a package to a superhero team headquarters, when he got caught in the middle of a super ght. His messenger bag got blown away by a wind and weather style hero, Blowhow, and he ran to catch it, nding he was running at hyper speed – looking over he saw a fast-running hero, Cwickalty, next to him. He realized he could copy the powers of heroes when he was near them, almost matching them. Afterwards, he kept a small fraction of the copied powers even after he left their vicinity. But his power mimicking came at a cost – his clothes were colored four di erent colors. Imagine an X and Y axis converging at his navel. The upper left clothes were orange, the upper right cyan, the lower left green, and the lower right purple. The Laser Bee is Wintercindie's robot assistant. He is loosely based on the Charles Nelson Reilly Bic Banana Pen TV commercials where he wore a banana suit. The robot's design has stripes, so he looks more like a bee. He is hyper and silly like Charles and is in love with Wintercindie, and never stops believing she could love him back. This story was written by Frank Edward Nora on March 3, 2020. It all came together in his mind during his morning shower. Then the dreaded Hoops Fenderzocko, the green owl magician hand puppet with a copper top hat, bursts through the hovercraft's window, and with Cwickalty speed, draws the Three Billy Goats Gru on everyone's chin with his El Marko. With insane laughter worthy of the Sidecar he grabs Doc's mug, spilling the sweet grape elixir all over the multicolor-garbed hero, and jumps back out the window. Insurance the Devil Girl, with a black and red out t, whirls around with her pitchfork and shoots a blast of barbed wire supersmoke after the puppet, to no avail. She had once been a god's intelligent sword, eventually granted personhood by that same god. Many adventures later as a male superhero with teleportation powers, an interdimensional accident reverted Insurance to sword form. A devil girl named Lemon was able to use infernal sorcery to restore Insurance to human form, but as a sexy devil girl like Lemon. Wintercindie, who had been napping, is jolted awake as Magic Smup spins out while turning the hovercraft around to try and catch the mug-stealing puppet. Luckily, Hoops can't resist getting a pretzel at the pretzel hut, as the hovercraft bears down on him. He darts away at the last second (before paying) as the hovercraft crashes into the pretzel hut. The team jumps out the hovercraft door and pursues the green puppet on foot. Doc wonders aloud whether they should just let the puppet go and continue on the pebble mission. But the chase is afoot. The team bounds through the streets of the city, and spots Hoops entering a bowling alley, pausing a moment to nish his pretzel. Inside the alley, with the sound of pins crashing, and the smell of beer and junk food, the endish owl is nowhere to be seen. Until... what? Hoops is atop a ten pin, a bowling ball headed his way – a sure strike. With a nod to the team, he jumps down, picks up the pin and puts the mug in its place. In the nick of time, he escapes behind the pins, as the ball comes crashing down and smashes to bits Doc's beloved Mannheim Steamroller Cinnamon Hot Chocolate mug. The clouds come, thunder the darkening sky, air electric with its initial drops, and then the deluge, collapsing into the pavement, and the nine little pebbles, have a little drink.

New Whychock Revival Notes

It's been a long road getting here to New Whychock Revival, The Epic Psychedelic Gen X Poem. The origins of the project stretch back nearly 40 years. I am very happy with the nal result, and very surprised that it exists at all. I am pleased to present it to you.

I grew up as part of Generation X in the suburbs of New Jersey, always aspiring to de ne myself through my creative works. I tried to do it all— ction, movies, music, comics, radio, games, video, poetry, and every other possible genre.

As these things go, I eventualy found my creative calling – I've been doing my Internet radio show, The Overnightscape, for over 20 years now. But starting back at the end of the 1980s, I tried my hand at poetry – a project that should have fallen by the wayside long ago – but has somehow continued to this day.

From 1989 to 1990 I wrote Abaxial Usufruct, a set of 209 poems, written in a standard poem format. Then, in early 1992, I wrote a poem called Verse11592, still in a standard poem format, and introducing the character Hemidawn the Racer, who would go on the begin and end the work.

Later in 1992, I made a digital le called Superior #1, where I developed a new poem format – each poem was its own paragraph. This is the format I used going forward.

The rst "Superior" was an edited version of Verse11592.

From 1994 to 2003, I published an online "e-zine" called Obliviana Super Occult Amusement, which among other things featured the Superior-style poems in most issues. After the last Superior, I continued with additional phases of poems using the same format: Parking, Duskaway, and Hurricaner.

OsoaWeek ended in early 2003, and I shifted my focus to Internet radio.

Later in 2003, I published all of the poems from Superior to Hurricaner as Duskaway Parking, a print-on-demand book. I have one copy, not sure if any others were made.

Then, from 2004 to 2007, I continued the poems as a new phase called Thinkfang.

In 2009, I published (in PDF form) a new book, called Thinkfang, which added the Thinkfang phase of poems to the rest of the work. Circa 2011, I put the PDF of the book on the website thinkfang.com.

The nal poem in Thinkfang mentioned "a note left by me long ago" – 209x6=1254 – that there should be 1,254 poems in the full work. This required that 121 more poems be written.

In 2017, I decided to nish things by writing the additional 121 poems. I called this nal phase “Whychock” (as in, why make it chock full of poems?) It was slow going at rst, but by 2024 I decided I would nish poem 1,254 exactly 30 years after the rst issue of OsoaWeek. It was an intense and ful lling time of writing, getting to this nal poem.

The work ends with Hemidawn the Racer taking an exit to a “weird little highway”... which was conceived as a continuation of the work, in audio form. I have made 7 episodes of Weird Little Highway since, each starting with a poem, and then bringing back characters from my various abandoned ction projects.

I updated thinkfang.com with the PDF of Whychock in July 2024, and the project was complete – or was it?

After the release, I realized that there were a number of poems in the work that I didn’t like – they were just plain bad, and in some cases, embarrassing. So, I started a process of removing the worst poems. At the same time, I took away the individual poem numbering, and reorganized the whole thing by “Cups” – each one month of writing. I also then conceived of the work as one long poem.

The resulting work, Whychock Revival, removed about 30% of the text that had existed, and was, in my view, a much better way to represent the work. I made PDF of the book in August 2024, and posted it to thinkfang.com, keeping the old editions on another page.

And that was it, until this year, 2026. I once again revisited the work, and was struck by both how good the best parts felt to me, and how bad the worst parts were. I embarked on a new edit, striving to keep only the best stu . This edit resulted in removing around 80% of the text from Whychock Revival, leaving only the best stu .

In this “New Whychock Revival” edit, I kept the sequence of words, but did change some punctuation and paragraphs, and did make some very light edits to things. I also decided to add the seven poems from Weird Little Highway.

In doing research on the history of this project, I found the aforementioned Verse11592, where the work really started. I decided to add this poem, exactly as written, to the become the end of New Whychock Revival.

Very interestingly, the nal line of Verse11592 is a sentence of nonsense words, with the final word being “sisif”. While it was just a made-up word, “Sisif” is actually the name used for “Sisyphus” from Greek Mythology, in Romanian and French. This implies a kind of loop, where the end leads back to the beginning.

New Whychock Revival retains all of the best writing from the entire work. The previous versions will remain available, semi-hidden, in an archive called Onsug Radio Vault. This new version is the one I want people to read, moving forward.

This work can be confusing. In it, I refer to many real but obscure things, and at the same time, I make up a lot of things. Names, places, products, artists – some are real and some are made up. I also write from many different perspectives, sometimes the real me, but many times from the perspective of fictional characters. And I do make up a lot of words.

After years of writing and editing these poems, there are so many sections and phrases that really stand out strongly in my mind. I can’t imagine what it would be like to encounter this writing for the first time, as it’s so much a part of my thoughts at this point.

Enjoy!

VERSION 2 NOTES

Added two more poems from Weird Little Highway (#8 and #9).

Revised #9.

I also made a new shorter version call New Whychock Revival Window, meant to be near the same length as A Wine of Wizardry by George Sterling (1904). It’s an excerpt, starting at “Door beads but they’re little dice.” and ending at “Write your own ticket.”, also removing the years and the periods before the years.

WEIRD LITTLE HIGHWAY 1

Weird Little Highway: Zope's Dilemma (9/16/24) [Onsug Radio]
Weird_Little_Highway-Zopes_Dilemma-9-16-24-Onsug_Radio

They don't have a lot of lights hereabouts. Art thou Condor Girl. The Major Ancient Socks. New single by Toad Road Barnstorming: Best of Lulu / This Drapery is Heavy. Who are celebrities? It would be good to know. That cloud is kind of everything. Some brown leaves looked slightly like a rabbit, it wasn't important. Charles Rocket didn't quite make it, young of tiger and hydraulic opal. Phase Panda Darrow, The Scumhooper Sideway, Plastic Italy was hello.

This is Weird Little Highway

It's night time, and all the stores and buildings and attractions on both sides of the highway are lit up, like neon, every color, every shape.

By the side of the road we see two crudely drawn black and white comic strip characters, Fred and Zope

Fred was a squat little fellow--two or three feet tall at most. He had a huge nose, big, cartoonish eyes, and sharp teeth. He wore a striped black-and-white elf-cap with a furry ball on top, out of which stuck two enormous pointy ears. He wore a shirt that was striped like the cap.

Zope was taller, with a round head, and hair shooting up like Eraserhead. His eyes were two vertical slits and his eyebrows just two lines connected, like an L shape angled 45 degrees. He wore a T-shirt with a picture of himself on it.

Zope: So THIS is my final resting place, this sorry excuse for a turnpike??!!??

Fred: Whoah there… you're not Alva! What… what happened? It was daytime and now it's night?

Zope: Hey there little buddy. You lost?

Fred: And how! I thought I had a new lease on life back on that walkway… but now this…

Zope: Yeah, this. Not the worldwide stardom I was expecting.

Fred: Anyway, pleased to meet you. I am 'Fred', a lame character of a group of '80s losers. I was made up by them.

Zope: A loser in the 80s? That sounds awfully familiar.

Fred: How so?

Zope: I was made up by this guy Frank, and things were going great the first few years. He said I was to him as Mickey Mouse was to his hero, Walt Disney. Said I'd be as famous as Snoopy someday. What a load of crap.

Fred: Well Tom and his friends never had big plans for me… I was just a funny little character of theirs… sometimes a part of their dungeons and dragons games… but they all forgot about me as time went on.

Zope: Yeah? Well Frank never forgot… he just lost the will to write and draw me. And now, decades later, he makes this "Weird Little Highway" for all his abandoned characters to live in? Sheesh. What a joke. You must be one of his too.

Fred: I don't think so, Mr…. what did you say your name was?

Zope: I'm Zope.

Fred: Ah, hello Zope. As I was saying, I was created by Tom and his friends. I never heard of this Frank person...

Zope: That's probably because he created Tom, who then created you, get it?

Fred: Not in the slightest, as Gamble would say.

The two stood in silence for a bit. Then a red and gold dune buggy drove by.

Zope: What the hell, that guy has pictures of me all over his car!

Fred: "That's not something you see every day", as Kelley would say.

Zope: No I mean it, who is that guy? Shouldn't there be a motorcycle nearby for me to hop on and chase him???

Fred: No motorcycles, as far I as can see Mr. Zope.

Zope: Sheesh.

They stood in silence again for a time.

Zope: So what's the last thing you remember?

Fred: I woke up under a bus. It was a place called The Sahatter Elevated Walkway. There was this fellow there... named Alva Meow. A train racer, he said he used to be, He was more of a regular human person, like Tom... not characters like us.

Zope: Uh huh

Fred: It was like a road, up in the sky, covered with colorful tilework. We were walking and then the sky got dark and a giant head yelled at us, a pretty girl with a mohawk.

Zope: That sounds like Frank's work alright.

Fred: So who is this Frank guy, anyway?

Zope: He lives in an alternate dimension called New Jersey.

Fred: So with all this talk of him creating Tom, who then created me... who's to say someone didn't create him?

Zope: Don't encourage him. Anyway, I need some smokes. There's gotta be a store to buy some smokes on this stupid itty bitty turnpike, c'mon Fred, let's get moving.

The two started walking...

Weird Little Highway: The Faire (11/25/24) [Onsug Radio]

I am seen of gutter maintenance the tile Florida. Minor Synthetic Detectives, the pyramidal sneakiness of the power, it already happened. Cool guy vague megalomania, cyberpunk list a cul-de-sac of mushrooms and mocktails and effects pedals. Duskmadvarp. Corn palace soccer sarcasto, editpinto, gas lonesome embed, polite applause petunias the of electrical future. Riverboat Overnight Sarsaparilla and Whammy Wisteria. Slungoon Bore Washfooper Wonkybuggy Semi. Looxcoot Zeptoke-Nuke. Throw a tea party for ancient obelisks and stop motion reptiles. Lee Darby Vunkers & Roman Goody – formless void negotiators. The idea that you could write descriptions of fake places, like some kind of ice palace, a guy visits after work, in the 1930s.

This is Weird Little Highway.

It's dark out, and two women in their late 20s are driving down a commercial highway in a 1991 Mocha Frost Clearcoat Metallic Ford Taurus GL. The driver, Spencer, is wearing a smart business suit, while the passenger, Flare, is wearing a jester costume, she's all wet, face paint running, having dried in the car for a little while, her three coned cap sitting crumpled next to her.

"Thanks for coming to get me, I didn't know who else to call", Flare said.

"Well listen, no matter what happened in the past, we were still friends way back when, and that matters", Spencer replied.

"Thanks", Flare said, turning to look out the window at the neon signs of the stores passing by.

"I still don't understand how things could have gotten so out of hand at the freaking Renaissance Faire, Flare, my dear."

Flare sighed.

“I swear, as soon as that singer Harla got there, it all started going downhill. It’s a long story.”

“I bet.”

“And Conrad got taken away. He said to try and call him in the morning, but I don’t know.”

They drove in silence for a time.

“Where the heck is that intersection, with the ice cream places?” Spencer said. “I could have sworn we’d be there by now. That’s near your place, no?”

“Yeah…” Flare said as she looked around. “What the heck, this doesn’t look like the right road…”

“But we didn’t turn anywhere” Spencer said. “How could we have gotten on the wrong road?”

“Hmm…” Flare said. “Why don’t we turn in here to try and get our bearings. You have maps in the glove compartment?”

Spencer didn’t answer as she turned into a shopping plaza, pulling into a parking space near some stores.

“Yeah I should have some maps… but I don’t know what good they’ll do us… I didn’t catch the name of the road we’re on anywhere…” Spencer said.

Flare opened the glove compartment and started rummaging around.

“Isn’t there supposed to be a light in here?” Flare asked.

“It burned out.”

As Flare continued to rummage, Spencer said slowly “what the hell?”

Flare looked up, and they both saw a bizarre sight – like two living cartoon characters, poorly drawn, black and white – one tall, one short, passing by the front of the car, heading for a smoke shop.

“No…” Flare said. “No. No. The drugs were good at the ren faire, but not THAT good. This has gotta be…”

They watched as the weird pair entered the smoke shop.

“We’re not dreaming” Spencer said. “There has to be a logical explanation. Those could just be very, very good costumes. Come on, let’s go in and ask them. Maybe they know what road we’re on.”

Flare nodded. As they got out of the car, she briefly looked down at her jester cap, but decided against putting it on.

They looked around the parking lot with apprehension as they headed for the smoke shop.

WEIRD LITTLE HIGHWAY 3

Weird Little Highway: The Mall (12/27/24) [Onsug Radio]
Weird_Little_Highway-The_Mall-12-27-24-Onsug_Radio

How come wheels are for the island of hotels, co-reverie? And it's a motor appointment of attractive reasons, this little optical ten-cent wheelhouse. Corvid viewlines, banter disposable and dear, a yonder luxe and obvious. Cavort senselessly with jerboas and insurance agents. Crazy little thing called a numeral flip of the cuckoo wand. Bongo energy dune, community center for a cosmic gulf. And wait a minute, could a nap be in the cards. Sneak into the office of the captain of the zeppelin, uncork the absinthe, dim the lights, switch on the movie projector. It shows weird little puppets snowboarding on the roof of your house, why would it show that? Anyway, it was a short film, and there's a private bathroom, with the blue sandalwood soap of the Delwin Dawn.

This is Weird Little Highway.

It looks promising, this weird little highway… night time, all the colorful lights and signs of the businesses along the way…

I got a feeling, like I'd discovered something profound, without knowing what it is.

How did I get here, anyway? In my groovy little red and gold dune buggy, with the cartoon graphics all over. I'd been driving through that cyberpunk metropolis, a place I'd been to a number of times over the ages. But this exit, I never took this one before.

When it started, I cracked the demishock of morn coursing through the dim. And my trip, my journey… through all manner of crazy places. Finally ending up here.

By a strip mall up on the right, as I'm passing, I see two fellows, one taller, one shorter, looking like crudely drawn cartoon characters, in monochrome. The taller one notices me and starts waving his arms around as I speed by. Should I stop? Nah... I'm sure I'll run into them again in the future... and come to think of it, he did look familiar, kind of like the character graphics on my buggy.

Now up on the left, on the other side of the highway, another weird cartoon thing, like a cannonball, with goofy eyes and his tongue hanging out, flying down the roadside toward me. He glances over at me but doesn't react much, as we pass each other by.

I am Hemidawn the Racer. But is the race over? Did it ever start?

Hmm... what's that sign coming up... WEASEL VILLAGE MALL DRIVE, exit to the right... think I'll check it out.

Up a little curved incline, then the mall comes into view, a vast parking lot with some cars, not many, tall concrete pillars, each with a unique design at the top, must be a way for people to find their cars. I park by what looks like a kind of main entrance.

Turning off the dune buggy, the quiet strikes me. When was the last time I sat in silence like this? Looking around, I do see a few other dune buggies in this place. But the entrance is looming.

I get out of the car and stand up, and I get a little dizzy. Again, the sensation of stillness, no longer racing, is a kind of ecstasy, a relief. I take a deep breath. It's a little chilly out, but not too bad.

I stroll over the the entrance, with a big sign saying WEASEL VILLAGE MALL. Stepping inside, there's a few people milling about, but the mall is largely empty.

To my left I see a store called "Of The Fantastick of a Frog" (Fantastick with a CK at the end), which seems to stock all manner of products featuring pop culture frogs, like Dig'em from Sugar Smacks cereal, Michigan J. Frog from Looney Tunes, Freddie from New Zoo Revue, and Robin from The Muppets.

Continuing deeper into the mall, there's a big hoarding, reading WOLFMELLOW OPEN DURING CONSTRUCTION, with graphics depicting an indoor theme park, which I assume is being renovated.

But I turn to the right, walking past a fountain with some kind of scientist statue in the middle. A sign up ahead points to the left and says RESTROOMS and NIGHTSTATION. I head that way.

Up on the right is indeed this "Nightstation" place... themed as a train station at night, with little trains moving at different levels, some with people in them, they looked kind of like roller coaster cars, so I wondered if there'd be a roller coaster inside... that would maybe be too similar to the thrill ride I'd just taken, racing through so many different worlds and scenarios.

But as I enter, I see there's an observation deck, which I go into, and I can see that it's not a thrill ride per se, but more a dark ride, with the trains moving through various scenes and worlds... but again, seeming like my experiences in miniature... and I start to think, this place is connected to my sphere of identity in some way.

I go back into the lobby area, and a wood panel on the wall slides back, revealing a little puppet stage. Two puppets rise up, a wizard that looks a bit stoned, with pointy wizard cap, and a sneaky-looking green parrot, dressed as a magician, with copper-colored suit and top hat.

“Well lookee here,” the wizard says, “we actually got a customer!”

“Let’s not be too hasty,” the parrot says, “he may just be a window shopper.”

I gesture toward myself, and cock my head.

“Yes, you!” the wizard says, “Who are you tryin’ ta be, some kinda World War One flyin’ ace, in that getup?”

“Uhh…” I said, “sure…”

“So are you here to ride the wild rails?” the parrot said, “Or stand around looking confused all night?”

“I just got off a major ride of my own,” I said. “But I’m game to try your little railroad amusement.”

“Well if it’s your first time, you’re in for a treat!” the wizard puppet said. “Where ya from, anyway?”

“Uhh…” I said, “I’m from… where it began?”

“Well maybe things will be clearer once you’ve ridden the amazing Nightstation!” the wizard said. “Just step over to the ticket window, and you’ll be on in a jiff! Not much of a wait, as we don’t have many customers at the moment.”

I nodded my head and said “thanks, I think I’ll take you up on your suggestion.”

I turned and headed for the ticket window.

This is Weird Little Highway.

"Tom gave me some funny cigarettes to smoke once," said Fred, a strange little, crudely drawn, black-and-white cartoon character. "But I just coughed and my eyes turned into X's".

"Tom sounds like real prince", Zope said, a taller but similarly poorly drawn black-and-white cartoon character. "But now the hard part, choosing my smokes..."

A prog rock song, with complex synth and violin parts, played over the speakers of the store.

“What’s your usual poison?” asked a skinny dude behind the counter of the smoke shop, with a name tag reading “Dana”.

“Gimme a sec while Frank tries to imagine what his 18 year old self would have called my cigarettes, though I don’t think he ever named them…” Zope said.

“Take all the time you need,” Dana said.

“Say Dana,” Fred said. “Do we look strange to you? You’re a real person after all, and we are… how to say… drawn?”

Dana regarded the two.

“Well they say smoking causes health issues.”, Dana said.

“Don’t harass the NPCs, Fred”, Zope said. “They don’t know any better.”

Dana scrunch up his face, as if suddenly realizing something, but he didn’t respond.

“But Zope,” Fred said, “aren’t we also non-player characters ourselves?”

“Not at all,” Zope said. “because we realize we’re characters. That’s the difference.”

“Hmm…” Fred said, pressing his finger to his lips in thought.

A bell on the door rang, and two women, Spencer and Flare, walked in. Spencer was dressed in business attire, and Flare was a mess, dressed in a jester outfit, sans cap.

"Welcome to New Old Smoky's." said Dana, unenthusiastically.

"Major Smoko!" Zope said. "That's what the brand would have been called, in Halfevil, the world I lived in."

"Hey guys," Spencer said hesitantly.

Zope, Fred, and Dana looked over.

"Specifically," Spencer said, "you two." indicating Zope and Fred, "how is it you're... looking like that?"

Flare has a confused, concerned look on her face, seeing the cartoon characters up close.

"More NPCs?" Fred asked.

Zope frowned and regarded the two women.

"Maybe not." Zope said. "So you two, uh, think we look... out of place?"

Spancer and Flare exchanged glances.

"It must be the drugs," Flare said. "No way those could be costumes."

"Do you realize you're characters, then?" Fred asked.

All of a sudden, a strange, deep noise filled the store. They all looked over at the window, where yet another poorly drawn cartoon character, a floating ball with a goofy expression and its tongue hanging out, had its face pressed up to the glass.

Before anyone could react, the window shattered, raining shards of safety glass, barely hitting anyone.

The bizarre character slowly floated into the store.

"Wow, hey Zope," the ball character said, "been awhile. Great job on that Pond Fuze, the explosion was cool cool cool. Where's that Deadzope T-shirt you were wearing back then?"

"Ah, Fnud, hey buddy!" Zope said, as Fnud continued floating slowly through the store, heading straight for Dana.

Dana looked confused and stepped to his right to avoid Fnud.

"I'm starting to think," Spencer said, glancing at Flare, "you might be right about the drugs..."

"Oh Zope," Fnud said, "I saw a race car driver before, his car had your pictures all over it."

"Yeah who is that guy?" Zope said, " What gives him the right to use my likeness? I haven't seen dime one from any automotive concern."

"I would have followed him," Fnud said, now drifting over the cash register, "but, you know..."

Fnud then slowly pushed into the back wall of the store and broke through, leaving the drywall in ruins in his wake.

"Later!" Fnud said.

The rest stared at Zope.

"That kid can't stop," Zope said.

At that moment, the prog rock song ended, and a female DJ with a husky voice spoke.

"Hey, Thor Panther Clothing coming at ya, here on Radio Rillekon's. That was The Universal Leotard, title track from Melter's Pluto's latest. They just keep getting better and better, no matter what the critics say. Coming up, a surprise visit from my Pseudoairport teammate, Harrison, Night President. Until then, here's an oldie but a goodie, from Earth Apple Anderson..."

Another song started, this one with bongo drums and hammered dulcimer, among other sounds.

"Okay," Spencer said. "Obviously, this is a situation. Drugs, dreams, virtual reality... no matter... you two... what the heck is going on? What ARE you?"

"You actually notice that we look weird?" Fred said. "So... you're not NPCs? You know you're characters?"

Spencer wore a pained expression, not knowing what to say.

Flare slumped to the ground, sitting cross legged, her head hanging down.

Zope turned his gaze from Flare to Dana. "So you got those Major Smokos, champ?"

Hemidawn the Racer approached the ticket booth at Nightstation. There were five rides to choose from: Art Nouveau Starbase, Wizard's Trailer Park, Slips Casino, Cyberpunk Badassery, and Misty Asian Mountaintops, but that last one wasn't available as it was experiencing technical difficulties.

Apparently these rides used mostly the same courses, but with differences in lighting, sound, music, video projections, props, etc. to make each one unique. As well, each had its own unique ride vehicle, complete with a diminutive locomotive and a six seater passenger car to ride in.

Hemidawn considered his options, then the girl in the ticket booth, whose nametag read "Thor", asked, "Is it your first time riding?"

The puppets kept jabbering behind him, but he ignored them.

"Uh, yeah," Hemidawn said, "I can't say I was even aware of these kinds of rides in the shopping malls before this..."

"Any of the choices strike your fancy? Mountaintops is out of commision at the moment, as you can see, but the other four are up and running", Thor said.

"How about this Wizard's Trailer Park, is that a good one?" Hemidawn asked.

"They're all up and fine," she said, "but Wiz's T.P. is tops for me out of this bunch. Care for a ticket?"

"Sure." Hemidawn said.

She pressed some buttons and then produced a ticket and handed it to him.

"On the house," she said.

Hemidawn took the ticket.

"Just go and wait over there, your adventure is about to begin!"

“Thanks…” Hemidawn said, somewhat overwhelmed by the place, and he walked over to the waiting platform. There was one couple ahead of him.

A black train, with neon stripes, came out of the tunnel, but didn’t stop. That must be the cyberpunk one.

A minute or so later, a gold train with palm trees and gambling chips graphics arrived, and the couple got in. After a few moments, it went on its way.

Alone now, Hemidawn waited as a low-volume soundtrack played. He looked up and saw several train cars, without passengers, go in and out of tunnels far above.

Soon, another train arrived. It was fashioned after a light blue pickup truck with silver lightning bolts with black outlines on it. “Must be mine,” he thought.

It stopped, and he got in. In a moment it started moving toward another tunnel entrance.

The dark tunnel turned to the left and opened into a room depicting a trailer park at dusk, with projections on the walls and flat cut outs of trailers, pickup trucks, and a few people.

The next scene was inside a trailer home, with a figure of a deranged-looking disheveled wizard character in red robes hunched over a crystal ball, facing away, and as the ride vehicle advanced, the wizard quickly turned to face the vehicle and exclaimed, “They called me a deranged maniac, but I’m the only one who remembers who we really are!”

In the next scene a motorcycle gang is seen entering the trailer park. A random resident screams, “The trailer park is under attack by bikers!”

Then the ride vehicle does a quick right turn, and is above the mall interior, right across from the entrance to the indoor theme park called “Wolfmellow”.

Veering left, the vehicle enters an interior space where several other vehicles are parked on a side track. “Welcome to Nightstation Cafe”, a neon sign reads. Under it, another sign says, “Take a break in the cafe, before the exciting conclusion of your story!”

Hemidawn stepped out of his ride vehicle and looked around. The space was meant to be an outdoor cafe at night, complete with a forced perspective city street, fake sky with stars, and jazz music playing. There was a counter to buy food and drinks, a small arcade with a few video games, rest rooms, and an observation platform.

It looked down on a darkened scene. Soon, the light came up and it was a beautiful concourse with windows looking out into outer space – must be part of the Art Nouveau Starbase course. A white and gold ride vehicle passed through, though without any passengers. A robot character looked to be talking, but he couldn’t hear it.

Then the scene darkened again, and he could barely see things shuffling around in the dark.

When the lights came on again, it was the scene he had just ridden through – the bikers invading the trailer park.

“Aha!” he thought, “so that’s how they do it.” Scenery shifts in and out, and the lighting and projections change, so they can use the same room for different ride courses.

He stepped away from the observation deck and checked out the arcade. There was a teenage girl playing a game called “Kings of Pyromania”.

He drifted over to the counter, looked at what they had to drink, but he wasn’t really thirsty.

He sat down at one of the “outdoor” tables, and started flipping through a Nightstation catalog he saw there. It told of the history of Nightstation, and listed a bunch of other ride courses.

After a minute, he stood up and walked back to his ride vehicle, which was still there waiting for him. He wondered how long people usually stayed in the cafe – he could imagine a certain sort of person staying in here for hours – but too many folks like that, and the parking section would get too full...

He sat down in his ride vehicle, and it smoothly started moving forward. It entered a tunnel, veered to the right, and opened onto a track above the main concourse of the mall, zoomed past a food court, and then tall windows showing the parking lot at night. He tried to see where his hot rod was parked, but he didn’t catch sight of it.

The train then doubled back, and soon he entered another darkened tunnel.

The next scene showed the bikers trashing the trailer park, with residents wailing “Help us!” Then the wizard opened his trailer door and started waving a magic wand.

A short tunnel transitioned to the next scene, where the trailer park residents had transformed into mythical creatures – centaurs, medusas, dwarves, satyrs, dragons, and the like. They easily defeated the bikers.

In the final scene, the mythological creatures were having a party, celebrating the wizard who had turned them back into their real selves to defeat the evil motorcycle gang.

During that scene, a light flashed. When Hemidawn got back to the entrance area, he saw a picture of himself in the party scene on a video screen. He assumed a printout of the picutre would be available for purchase, but he didn't see where.

He exited the ride vehicle and went back into the lobby. Thor was there to greet him.

"How did you enjoy your first time" she asked.

"Demishocking!", he said. "I enjoyed the experience."

A rainy Sunday, a bunch of college students in a dorm lounge, watching an old black and white TV show, we zoom into the set...

The title is shown, "Johnny Pitch". Then, "Episode 43: The Cellars Gamble", as a street scene comes into view. We see a building with a sign that says "St. Wave Typesetters".

The scene fades to an interior of the place, with two men: Whawque St. Wave, dressed in a typesetter's outfit, and Treezle Trookus, a jester wearing traditional garb, including a three-coned cap and marotte.

Treezle is working at a machine, but getting frustrated.

"Oh, I just can't get the hang of this infernal device!" he said.

Whawque walked over to him.

"Treezle my friend, just give it another go. If I'm going to be hiding you, you need to earn your keep!"

Suddenly a knock was heard at the front door. Whawque peered out the window and saw three policemen.

“It’s the police.”, Whawque said. “But they’re not the real police, they’re agents of Ebsekkian. But they don’t know that I know that. Come Treezle, hide in here.”

Treezle hid behind a secret door in a bookcase. He hears Whawque welcome the “police” in, and after some pleasantries, they started asking Whawque if there were any secret hiding places in the shop.

“Oh no, no secret doors in here… wait!” Whawque said as one of the “police” moved toward the bookcase.

Treezle started panicking and searched the back of the hiding space… finding a panel that he pushed open, beyond which was a dark corridor. He entered the corridor and closed the panel behind him just in time.

Back in the shop, the “policeman” opened the secret door, but there was nothing in the small space behind it. “No secret doors, eh?”

“Who’d be daft enough to put a secret door in a bookcase?” Whawque asked. “That’s the first place anyone would look. It’s just for extra book storage, if needed.”

Treezle was feeling his way forward in the corridor, and saw a faint light ahead. As he moved forward, he entered a room where the wall was smashed in. Then, through an open doorway, he saw some people… and some other beings…

Treezle entered the space, blinking his eyes at the bright lights, then wide eyed, surveying the scene… two women, one sitting on the floor and dressed somewhat like… a fellow jester? One fellow behind a cash register, his back to him… must have been some kind of shopkeeper? And two… living drawings, from the looks of them. Treezle had seen odder things.

Flare, wearing the jester outfit, though sans three coned cap, stared at Treezle, who is in back and white – no color.

"More… secret police?" Treezle asked hesitantly.

"A buncha jokers in here." Zope said.

"Wait," Flare said, "I recognize him. He's a character from that old TV show from Boolevathers, Johnny Pitch. I think his name is Treezle… something?"

"I'm Treezle Trookus", he said, still confused. "So you're not more of Ebesskian's goons trying to capture me?"

"Yes! Treezle Trookus! I remember now." Flare said. "Played by the great Weigart Simoleon. I see you're still in black and white, just like the show."

"Am I?"

"Let me guess," Zope said, "another obscure character made up by Frank, now dumped out here on this stupid little highway?"

"I'm afraid you all have me at an advantage," Treezle said. "You seem to know who I am, but I am unfamiliar with you strange lot."

"Yeah buddy," Zope said, "it makes sense. You only know the world you came from. But thankfully, Frank gave me meta awareness (long before Deadpool, by the way), so I have some idea what's going on."

Flare stood up with some effort.

"So, more fictional characters…" she said. "But I'm not fictional, I'm a real person. This must be a drug-fueled nightmare… good one though…"

Treezle looked behind him, but just saw the ruined back room in the smoke shop, not the corridor he came from.

Dana, the smoke shop employee just calmly observed what was going on around him.

"We're all fictional characters!" Zope exclaimed. "Rather than focusing on one project, Frank kept abandoning his ideas for the thrill of making something new. So he left a trail of lost characters in his wake. Somehow, we're all finding ourselves on this road – the last refuge of the fictional refuse of Frank's failures."

"But, uh, Treezle here is a fictional character in my world!" Flare said. "Every nerd in Basknontana is obsessed with Johnny Pitch and all its crazy characters."

"Sounds like a rip off of Doctor Who, if you ask me." Zope said.

"Doctor Who?" Flare asked.

"Yeah, a 'real' TV show in Frank's 'real' world. It's from a place called England. I assume this 'Boolevathers' is a fictional version of England that Frank cooked up."

"I know about Boolevathers!" Fred said. "Tom liked some comic books from there."

"So I guess you're all from the same fake place, then." Zope said.

"What fake place are you from, then?" Spencer asked Zope.

“I’m from Halfevil. But at least I know it’s a figment of some loser’s imagination.” Zope said. “So hey, jester boy, what’s the last thing you remember before winding up here?”

Treezle blinked exaggeratedly.

“Ah… I was hiding out… at the typesetter’s shop… then Ebsekkian’s men… Ebsekkian, he’s the one that’s after me… they came to the shop disguised as the police… I hid in a secret panel of some sort… then I found my way here…”

“Wait a minute,” Flare said. “I remember that episode. He hides behind the bookcase, and when the agents open it, he’s gone. He found his way down a spiral staircase, to a series of cellars under the shop, where the mystery only deepened.”

“I did?” Treezle asked.

“Well, you would have, pal, except Frank prbobaly didn’t write any more. End of the line for ya. Until you wound up here.” Zope said.

“I’m afraid I’m not getting any of this…” Treezle said.

“But look on the bright side!” Fred said. “As long as we can think, there’s still hope, as Kelley says.”

“Thinking is overrated,” Flare said, as she slumped back to the ground.

Going octane animal news, a mock gas station exit, as buzzy as anchoring, and koala and nebula shirts. Gotcha, as if barn owls were the mundane sodium vapor sentinels of youth, obligato imperial coverage, the freshener of pirate seas, or was it two seas. Um, are some panes of glass phantasms of the spymasters, ever in Iselin with worm energy, somehow the night business charms with its delusional humility. Toltec tattoo, around the table, brought together for the work, the banter and hilarity, will open a way, dimly remembered later. To carve a pigeonhole in other minds is hard enough, but be ready for the snugness. Lime had to grow to be jammed into your cocktail glass rim.

Zope, a crudely drawn comic strip character, stepped out of the smoke shop, with all the other characters within. Now instantly wearing a Sherlock Holmes deerstalker cap, as happens with cartoon characters.

"I need to investigate heavily," Zope thought. "This is not like my usual zany hijinks. It's more of a 'crisis of the fantastic'... whatever that means..."

Zope walked out into the night, into the parking lot, to get a look at the other stores in the shopping plaza. One that stood out was three of four stores to the left of the smoke shop, it was called “The Warp Subheadquarters”, with some seriously groovy typography.

Zope approached the store, and saw there was a sign on a brass stand in front of the store. It read: “The final iteration of the ‘Universal Night Audio Unit’ idea, which remained unmanifest, yet persistent, in Frank’s mind, for decades. Placed here into Weird Little Highway, stopped halfway on its way to manifestion, on or about February 16, 2026, thus discharging its influence.”

“Huh,” Zope said out loud, then thought “What, is Frank doing psychic surgery on himself with this idiotic highway concept now? That’s some next level deviosity.”

Zope tried the door, which was open. He stepped inside.

It was a featureless white room, starkly lit. Suddenly a woman’s voice (Azure Bree Dragon HD Latest, to be exact), started speaking, as a yellow door appeared… “Oh, hello. Welcome to The Warp Subheadquarters. Thanks for warping in. This time, let’s take the weird saffron door. Here it is. Go ahead, open it. See, there’s a dark corridor stretching slightly downwards, but doesn't it feel inviting?”

“Uh…” Zope said, “I didn’t open any door. It’s still closed, babe.”

“Ah,” the voice said, “interactive code recom… recom… recom…”

The voice kept repeating the word “recom” as Zope grimaced and left the store. “Yeah, good one, sister.” he said.

Back outside in the night, Zope thought, “Huh… these fake morons may actually be my brothers and sisters in this sick fictional backwater… thanks to that confused bard Frank, no doubt typing this right now on a typewriter... or maybe a computer... who knows anymore... geez, 2026? Does that mean it's been 40 years since he first drew me, with the scissors?"

All of a sudden two vans tear into the parking lot, turning tight and leaving skidmarks as they screech to a halt. Zope, startled, looks over at them.

One is beautifully painted with bright colors, elements of stained glass and hippie flower power, with its name on the side in a groovy script, "Millheel Chamille".

The other van was beat up, and a dirty dark purple color. Its name, written crudely in yellow, read "Mazenweed". There was an opening on the side, with "Puppet Theatre" scrawled above it in chalk.

"Huh," Zope said, "Shouldn't I have had some kind of van adventure myself, with all sorts of deranged and luxurious things inside? Oh yeah, that was in the timeline where Frank gave a shit and continued to draw me and made me as famous as Snoopy. But... at least... now I'm here... looking at two random vans... why?"

A wooden board painted black was removed from the opening of the "Puppet Theatre" from inside. A faintly lit purple curtain could be seen through the opening. Then two hand puppets entered from beneath. One was a human wizard, with a tall pointy hat, his outfit dark purple like the van, and the other was a green owl, with a copper colored top hat.

"Ah, good evening, Fenderzocko", the wizard said, in a relaxed, almost W.C. Fields inspired voice.

"Good evening to you, Mazenweed", the owl said, in a nasal, somewhat annoyed voice.

“I see we’ve only got an audience of one tonight,” Mazenweed said.

“Not to worry, we’ve had less,” Fenderzocko said.

There was a pause, as Zope walked closer to them.

“Ha ha,” Zope said. “What, are you waiting for me to chuckle?”

“Well, let’s not DRAW this out,” Mazenweed said, “introduce yourself, audience of one!”

“Puppets…” Zope said under his breath, “in a van… at night… in a parking lot… in a nether waste for wasted notions… are there other characters working the puppets… or are the puppets autonomous… but they’d be too small to drive the van… though maybe there’s a bigger puppet that would be capable of driving?”

“What’s that, son?” Mazenweed asked.

“Uh,” Zope said, “no, uh… hello! My name is Zope! What an absolutely lovely night for a bit of puppet entertainment! I only wish my little pal Pezo were here to witness it all.”

There was a pause, and then Fenderzocko spoke.

“Okay!” Zope said, “I get it! I look like a drawing, a sketch, to you. At least I don’t have some loser’s hand shoved up my…”

All of a sudden a new puppet appeared on the stage, looking like a classic ventriloquist dummy.

“Yes it’s me, Yonkers Dandy. How do you do my fellow marionettes.” he said in a somewhat sinister voice.

“Marionettes?” Mazenweed said. “What have you been smoking, kid? We’re the Puppets of the Van, not some clowns in an arcade machine, now.”

Then, tires screeching, the other van, Millheel Chamille, sped out of the parking lot.

“Friend of yours?” Zope asked.

“I have never seen that van before.” Yonkers Dandy said. “But when I focused on it before, it was quite pretty. Unlike this hunk of junk we call home. I shall petition for an upgrade.”

“Yes, let’s go up a grade!” Mazenweed said. “I think we’re ready to graduate from nursey school and enter kindergarten!”

Zope just stared at the puppets, an annoyed look on his face.

At a ride called Nightstation in the Weasel Village Mall on Weird Little Highway, a man named Hemidawn the Racer was talking to a woman named Thor, who worked at the ride.

“I’m glad you liked it. I’m quite the supporter of Nightstation.” Thor said. She had long black hair and and a mischevous look to her.

“Yeah,” Hemidawn said, “Makes you wonder why there aren’t more rides like this in malls.”

“Indeed.” Thor said. Then looking behind her, said, “I’m going on break now.

If you have time I'd love to talk to you about something."

Thor stepped out of the booth as another woman, shorter and with blond hair, stepped into the booth. Her nametag read "Not".

"Uh, sure..." Hemidawn said, a little confused.

Thor walked over to a little seating area in the lobby of Nightstation and motioned to a table with two seats. They both sat down.

"Huh," Hemidawn said, "it's interesting, you can't see any of the mall from this angle, just this little world of little trains."

"Yes that was the intention, for this to be a sort of world within a world kind of place. Which sort of relates to what I want to talk to you about." Thor said.

Hemidawn tilted his head with curiosity.

"Okay, here goes," Thor said. "You can probably tell, there's something not right with this place. I mean, not just Nightstation, but the mall itself, and possibly everything around the mall."

Hemidawn had a thinking look on his face.

"Well," he said, "I'm used to travelling through all sorts of weird worlds, one after another, without things making much sense. So this place is just kind of... par for the course for me. But I understand that there are people who live in just one world all the time..."

"So yeah..." Thor said. "I have kind of a similar experience... that's why I wanted to talk to you, because you seem to be a kind of Rillekoner like me."

"Rillekoner?" he asked?

"Someone who lives on Rillekon's Road."

"I can't say I'm familiar with that name..." he said.

"Or at least," she said, "someone who knows about and can travel to multiple worlds and levels of reality..."

"Um..." he said, "this is getting pretty deep. I started this ride of mine long ago, and have passed through a series of different places, one after another... but I really don't know how it all works. I just go somewhere, experience it, feel it's time to move on, and go to the next place."

"So it does sound like a sort of road that connects lots of unrelated places." she said.

"I'm... not sure it's a single road... in fact, now that I'm thinking about it, not a lot of my life makes much sense..."

Thor looked confused.

“So I think I might have gotten lost,” she said, “that this isn’t the same version of the Weasel Village Mall that I thought I was going to…”

“So start from the beginning… I’m not sure I can help, but tell me all about it,” Hemidawn said.

“Okay,” Thor said. “I’m Thor Panther Clothing, I’m a member of the superhero team Pseudoairport. My teammates are Harrison: Night President, Agatha Petunia Wack, and Free Dear Tours. We’re a kind of ad hoc police for Rillekon’s Road, since there is no real form of government there.”

“Anyway,” she continued, “We livr at our base, which is indeed a kind of fake airport – don’t ask – we’re not sure why it was built in the first place, we just kind of inherited it.”

“Wait,” Hemidawn said, “your name, Thor Panther Clothing, is familiar to me. I encountered some version of you long ago… maybe you were part of a different team then, called Century Gang? Something about a baseball bat and a bottle of whiskey?”

“Hmm…” Thor said, “Century Gang doesn’t ring a bell, but it’s a good team name. I actually know some newcomers who are looking to start a team, so I may suggest that name. But yes, in my hero way, I do have a baseball bat and a bottle of whiskey, along with a baseball cap I wear backwards and mirrored sunglasses. I drink the whiskey to enter a kind of berserker rage to improve my combat ability. But I don’t remember ever meeting you before.”

After a pause, Hemidawn said “I must say, I haven’t been reflecting on my experiences, I’ve just been… having them. Now we’re talking about it, not a lot of it is making sense…”

“I know,” Thor said, “this could be something of a reality crisis, but I think we can help each other. I don’t think there’s anyone else around.”

“How about your co-worker over there?” Hemidawn asked.

“Yeah so, her name is Not Important, so kind of a dead giveaway there. Some of the people here seem to be part of the background… and not real in the same way you and me are real.” Thor said.

Hemidawn stared in thought.

“So anyway,” Thor said, “besides my job here and with my team, I’m also a radio DJ. The station, Radio Rillekon’s, has its studios here in the mall… or rather… back in my version of the mall. They had asked me to do a fill in slot today, but it was the same time as my shift here at Nightstation, so they agreed I could pre-record my shift – I have my own mini-studio at the ’port.”

“So,” she continued, “I recorded it the other day, and I brought the tape with me to work today… and dropped it off at the station for them to broadcast… but as soon as I arrived at the mall and came in, I knew something was wrong, something was off. It was very similar, but it just didn’t feel like my version of the mall.”

“Okay…” Hemidawn said.

“But that’s the thing,” she said, “reality acts funny around Rillekon’s Road, in fact it can get so bad that there’s a reality report, similar to a weather report. But it’s usually not something like this.”

Hemidawn nodded.

“But to complicate matters,” she continued, “there are all these urban legends about how the Weasel Village Mall exists in a vast number of alternate worlds at the same time, and how if you explore the lowers levels of tunnels and corridors you might end up in another version of the mall. But this has never happened to me up to this point.”

“And to further mess things up,” she said, “Nightstation also had legends concerning it – which are a part of the lore of the ride – which could be seen as just so much marketing material… or not. The idea is that Nightstation is a train station that can appear anywhere in time and space and variation without warning – just pop into existence – and one train arrives, and whoever gets on it goes to another place and time and may never find their way home. There are even examples from ancient literature of things that sound like Nightstation, showing up. Some of these sources are thousands of years old.”

“And some even say that Nightstation is a kind of mental virus, that spreads from world to world, infecting the mind of an individual, who is then compelled to build a version of Nightstation. Such as where we are right now.” she said.

Hemidawn continued to stare at her in thought.

“Even to the point,” she said, “that there’s this idea that because one version of the Weasel Village Mall had a version of Nightstation in it, that the reality-hopping characteristic of Nightstation bled through into the Weasel Village Mall, and that’s what caused it to extend itself into so many other worlds. So it started with Nightstation.”

“But do you know that any of this is true?” Hemidawn asked.

“Up until now, no.” she said, “Though I have talked to a lot of folks who claim they have experienced such things. But anyway, I entered into this mall from Rillekon’s Road – a place you say you never heard of – but here we are, both in the same place. So what gives?”

“AHA!” the two heard from their right. They looked over to see a group of puppets and badly-drawn black-and-white characters standing in the lobby.

“There you are!” Zope, the tallest of the characters, and one of the badly-drawn ones, pointing at Hemidawn, said, “You have a lot to answer for, bub. Why do you think you can put pictures of me on your stupid car without paying me? Heh? We saw you drive by earlier, and these puppets gave me a ride in their van to give chase! We saw the mall and on a hunch cruised the parking lot till we found your idiotic jalopy. Then we scoured the place, and now we gotcha!”

This is Weird Little Highway.

In the lobby area of Nightstation, a dark ride at the Weasel Village Mall, the tension was high, as Zope, a poorly-drawn comic strip character with crazy tall hair had just accused Hemidawn the Racer of using Zope's image without permission. Hemidawn was a human man, in his late thirties, wearing a light brown leather jacket, with curly blond hair and bushy blond mustache, looking like a guy from a 1970s magazine cigarette ad. Sitting across from Hemidawn was a woman superhero with long hair named Thor Panther Clothing.

Next to Zope was a fellow poorly-drawn cartoon character named Fred, much shorter than Zope. Around them were six puppets, with no apparent puppeteers: Mazenweed the wizard with dark purple robes, Fenderzocko the green owl magician, Yonkers Dandy the ventriloquist dummy, a taller puppet named Racer who looked a lot like Hemidawn, a little lizard named Perkins Junior, and a similarly small robot named Micro Creep.

"Whoah..." Hemidawn the Racer said, "you're... that character... I didn't get a good look when I passed by you earlier, but I thought you looked familiar..."

"Familiar? Hah!" Zope said, "You covered your car with pictures of me, dork! What are you some kinda stalker loser?"

"No, no..." Hemidawn said, "no... those graphics... they've been on the dune buggy the whole time... since I cracked the demishock of morn... I think..."

"Well buddy my face doesn't come cheap! Prepare to pay the price!" Zope said as he reached behind his back and produced a chainsaw, revving it.

He started to lunge toward Hemidawn, when all of a sudden Rick from The Young Ones, from Season 2, Episode 2, "Cash" (1984), steps in and approaches Zope. He has wild hair, a fur coat over his shoulders, holds a walking stick in one hand, and a huge stack of cash in the other.

“Here little man, have a large sum of money”, he says as he hands Zope the stack of cash. The sound of laughter can be heard as Rick faces the theorietical audience and bows. Then, as if reading a cue card, Rick says, “And now…”, then his face showing great confusion, “CNN reporter… Christiane Amanpour?”

He then shrugs as if to say he has no idea what’s going on.

At a table in the corner, Christiane Amanpour looks over, and shakes her head, as if to say she wants no part of it.

Rick tries an uncomfortable smile and walks off sideways, still facing the unseen audience. He exits into the mall.

Zope’s chainsaw turns off, grinding to a halt.

Everyone is silent for a few moments. Christiane Amanpour gets up and also exits into the mall.

One of the puppets, the wizard Mazenweed, says “Well now you don’t see that every day! In fact, I wish I didn’t see it this day!”

Zope looks at the stack of cash, saying “What is this, a bunch of worthless British pound notes? Who was that moron who barged in here? Probably someone from Frank’s hyperactive pop culture memory banks.”

Thor Panther Clothing looked from Zope to Hemidawn, saying “You see what I mean? Something is definitely going on here. Living drawings and some kind of puppets walking around on their own, one which looks like you! And then those two… what were they, stage actors, just appearing like that? There is something seriously wrong with reality right now.”

She turned back to Zope and the gang and said, “Let’s all just cool it with the chainsaws and such... we need to figure out what may be going on here."

"Figure out?" Zope said, "What's there to figure out? We're all members of the fictional club, 'characters', capishe lady? Frank decided to bring some of us back on this poor excuse for a turnpike, out of guilt for his many decades of writer's block."

Fenderzocko, the green owl magician puppet looked from Zope to Thor. He said, "This young man has been going on and on about how we're all just poor, lost, fictional characters. I think he must be a plant for whoever's really behind this stunt. We were on our way to our next TV special when we took a wrong turn somewhere."

Yonkers Dandy the ventriloquist dummy said "Our theatrical enemies, The Rotten Deliveries, who drive around in a delivery truck, are probably to blame. We always fight with them on our TV specials. But we always win, of course. We are the good guys. This weirdo is most likely a new recruit for them."

"Excuse the puppets," Zope said, "they're of a limited intellect. I'm not pulling your legs. We are all made up characters. This dude Frank came up with us. He promised to work hard on my comic strip, and one day make me as famous as Snoopy. But in his delusional haze, he abandoned me and all the other poor slobs he invented. He's much older now and this 'weird little highway' is a last gasp effort to wrench some of us from blissful oblivion."

"Oh, come on..." Hemidawn said, but Thor interrupted him.

"No," she said, "I've heard of something like this before. Here on Rillekon's Road, or... rather... 'back' on Rillekon's Road, we were sent on a mission to aid a fellow superhero team, Bunco Cavaliers, who became listless and unmotivated when they met this young woman who claimed that they were all just characters in a story she was writing. We were able to go on a quest for a special kind of ink, that when they bathed in it, removed their 'fictionality', so to speak, and restored their realness, and their confidence."

"Ah, come on lady," Zope said, "just listen to what you're spouting! All these stupid scenarios have the hallmark of Frank's freakish imagination! Magic ink baths? Pah!"

Everyone was quiet for a moment. The puppet Racer stepped forward and looked at Hemidawn. "Uh," he said, "I know it might not be the right time for this, but, uh... are you my father?"

Hemidawn stared for a few moments with an incredulous look on his face. "Not that I know of," he said, "though I suppose anything is possible... especially given what's been happening. But I'm probably not the one to figure it all out. I just seem to drift from one bizarre place to another."

"Just figured I'd ask," Racer said, backing up and lowering his head.

Thor Panther Clothing stood up.

"It seems apparent," she said, "That if he's right about his writer slash fiction theory," motioning to Zope, "that this author must be writing this right now. I mean, even what I'm saying at this moment. So..."

She looked up at the landscapes of Nightstation and continued, "Hello there, uh, Frank was it? If any of this is true, could you let us know? I'd sure like to get back home to the 'Port, and I'm sure everyone else would also like to get back. What do you say?"

There was silence.

"Well, I guess someone had to try that," Mazenweed said, "but in this case it's tried and not true."

Suddenly the sounds of a laser printer firing up could be heard coming from the Nightstation ticket booth.

“Oh Thor,” Not Important said in a loud tone of voice from across the lobby, “I think these printouts are for you.”

Thor looked around at all the others, a smile of triumph on her face.

“See everyone? I’m not a superhero for nothing. I’m trained for this sort of thing,” she said.

She strode over and retrieved the laser printed pages, skimming them as she walked back to the group.

“Okay…” she said, “this seems to be from the author. Though of course all of this could be caused by any manner of supernatural or extradimensional agent. But anyway, here goes…”

She read from the printouts.

“Yes, you’re correct, I am writing this right now. My name is Frank Edward Nora. I’m in The Overnightscape Studio 3, my home office, so to speak. It’s 1:18 PM on Sunday, September 6, 2026. Zope is completely correct in what he is saying. Um, he’s the taller comic strip character guy… I don’t think he introduced himself earlier.”

“Anyway, it’s true, I’ve always been interesting in writing and creating characters. And while I often start off enthusiastically, as happens with writing, what’s easy to write at the start gets harder and harder the further you get. So I tend to start writing something new when a particular storyline starts to bog down. That has led to a huge number of abandoned storylines and characters.”

“And not only that, but when I was younger, I seemed to have a massive supply of creative mojo, so to speak, and the writing just flowed out of me. And also the drawing, in the case of Zope, even though I can’t really draw. I even won Worst Minicomic of the Year in 1986 for my Zope comics. But anyway, as I got older, it was much harder for me to create fiction, I just ran out of that kind of creative fuel, like I was running on fumes."

"But I never lost interest in the people, places, and things I brought into existence. So what happened in the past few years was, I had this book of poetry that was eventually named New Whychock Revival, and I spent many months completing it, and doing all that writing, albeit in a weird free poetry format, was a very rewarding process. Once I ended it, bringing back our friend Hemidawn here, for the end of the book, since he was the one at the start, I figured I had to create some way to continue it."

"So that's where this Weird Little Highway concept came from. The title actually comes from a song called Weird Highway, which existed in my video series Beublin A. Richardson, and the band, Melter Pluto, also existed in my failed science fiction novel, Severe Repair (where several folks on the highway are from – you, Thor, and also that Jester back at the smoke shop, Treezle Trookus), and then also the real world, to me, band, Fuzzy Daupner, that I was a part of, we made Weird Highway a real song. So considering it was an example of a cross-world project, I figured I'd call it Weird Little Highway, maybe inspired by Little World of Racetracks, another of my abandoned projects (there are lots of them, as I'm sure you've gathered by now."

"So, all that said, I didn't realize that it would actually come to me talking to all of you directly. But when Zope came in contact with you, Thor, I realized that you'd take him seriously and try and make contact with me. I know that I'm writing this and I'm theoretically in control of everything that happens to you guys, but that's not really the case."

"The act of writing fiction is more like watching something in your mind as it plays out, and while the writer does direct the situations and think up characters, and stuff, it really feels like the characters have a kind of existence beyond the pure imagination of the author. I don't think anyone really understands how it all works."

“And something Fred said earlier to Zope, about how with all these meta levels of characters, how do I know that I’m not just another character being written, in these nested meta levels of fiction. Well, I don’t. And I think about it a lot. About the nature of reality, and how what I view as real could just be a story being told by some storyteller at a higher meta level.”

“So anyway… bottom line, in as much as I am solely responsible for your existence and activities, which I actually don’t know for sure, I want to apologize for my bringing you all into existence and then abandoning you. Please understand that I truly lack the creative energy to write very much. In fact, this piece I’m writing right now, it’s taken me many weeks of thinking about before it’s all come flowing out of me today.”

“I do intend to keep writing Weird Little Highway, but as of right now, I’m not sure how we move forward from this moment of revelation for all of you. I mean, I did realize this moment was coming. I’ve even told a bunch of people I know that I had this metaficional situation brewing, where I’d have to talk directly to my characters. I’ve been kind of anticipating, yet also kind of dreading, this moment, as I said, for many weeks now.”

“Anyway, I guess that just about does it. As I said, I’m not sure how you will all react… maybe I’ll leave that to the next Weird Little Highway episode. But please know that I love all of my characters and want the best for you. I just don’t have the same creative energy as I used to. Take care.”

Thor looked up at the others.

“And that’s it,” she said.

“Haha, yeah!” Zope said. “Let’s see him try and continue this story now! Good luck, Frankie, you’re gonna need it!”

On the universal night audio trip, let's get moving. Walk out the door, the sky is overcast, some kind of late afternoon small city street. People are walking away from a street fair that has just closed with big orange foam hats. Next to the street is a field, the ground is wet, must have rained earlier. We walk out into the wet field, the mountains in the distance beckon. Someone in a costume is walking the same way we are. The mountains are fake, they are just a painting, a backdrop. The costume is full of bright colors, bringing to mind a parrot, or a pirate, or a rag doll, but seems to be in reference to a type of wandering adventurer. There is a gazebo here, but the explorer is walking away. To enter the gazebo, press one. Or to keep following the explorer, press two. But I know you can't press them right now so we will turn around and go back to the town, the normal town. Let's go sit down at the outdoor seating area of the restaurant over here, it looks kind of cool and interesting. It's called Magic Smup. Kind of a quirky name. It reminds you of the word shmup, short for shoot 'em up, a video game genre. But in this case the smup part feels more like a reference to fairies, Smurfs, or other small, whimsical fantasy humanoids that just want to eat and have fun in peace. With a little mischief thrown in of course. You will order some beers, and we will now talk about the world. It's getting darker now and the city is lighting up. I love a sense of possibility the bright signs in a city night seem to radiate, like anything could happen. What, isn't this supposed to be ramp fiction, the story of you, an adventurer, or was that you back there, the multi-colored rag doll explorer, from another dream? The beers come, We ordered the sour beers, this new sour flavor, didn't you have some a few weeks ago, and weren't too impressed at the time, but now you're been thinking about it, and want more. This is the story of you having beer in a whimsical town, all the jolly people skulking by with scowls and sadness, as they are not happy with the life they lead in this magic town. Can we help them? Can we put on a puppet show for them, to help them forget their pathetic life. But we need to set forth on an exploration, we need to find the museum, because tonight, Thusday night, is the night they stay open late. They may even have a sleepover night tonight, where you can stay overnight in the museum. But we probably would have had to get tickets in advance. And I think you need to bring your own sleeping bag and other such things. But we can still go and hope for it to be a magic museum with magic fun times. But hold on – can this town have a real giant backdrop of mountains at the edge of it – it doesn't make sense. What could be holding it up, it was a huge flat image of a mountainous terrain. This is all meant to be a place you can be in, you can live in, but it is just a phantom thought, just an audio paragraph read by the woman computer voice, your friend in this most excellent trip. We finish the sour beer, after having some kick-ass onion rings, and are feeling good, and pay the bill. Off to the museum we go, it is called the Museum of the Inhibited Smup. It is all about a smup, like a little goblin kind of guy, who is inhibited in life and has trouble enjoying the magical hijinks. Each room, or exhibit, features detailed dioramas of the smup and his difficulties in life. We just find the nearest door marked do not enter, and rip open the door and run into the darkness within, into the basement of the pointless museum, where there is one last exhibit. It looks very old, and in ancient writing over the top it says, "Ramp Fiction, Magic Smup, read to you by the computer woman". It is a scale model of you, listening to this, hunched over and enthralled by these words, as the real world, your real world, is shown in a backdrop of the exhibit, and you are there.

I know you were wondering what this whole Nightstation thing was all about. That's why we came here to the Weasel Village Mall. They have a great Nightstation location here. They built it while they were adding a wing to the mall, so they were able to integrate their trains into the architecture of the mall. Going high up by the glass ceiling, on a winding elevated track over the food court, and even looking down into some of the stores. So it's right over this way. I hear they have a new trip that just got released this week. Let's walk past the statue of Lamar the Macho Chemist. And I hear they're opening up a Magic Smup restaurant over there, but the hoarding isn't up yet. Wow, see, look up there, that's one of the tracks, you should see a Nightstation train coming around the corner any... oh there it is! The black and red hot rod train! I love that one. Maybe we'll get that one. I wonder what trip they're on. At this location they have six different trips, and they are updating them all the time. But of course the old trips go into storage, but sometimes they bring them back, or set them up at other Nightstation locations. One that I loved, they had a few years ago, was Bortle-Scoville Cyber City, really almost felt like you were inside the movie Tron. But the sets and the projections were kind of rudimentary. I mean, the large, boxy shapes that are associated with cyberspace were easier to build. And their techniques have become much more advanced since then. But I heard a rumor they might be bring it back totally rebuilt, like redone from the ground up. I really hope they do it, but of course there are so many new trips they're working on. And... right around the corner here... there it is! Yeah I know, the line is super long, but I made a reservation, so we can go into member's entrance, since I'm a member. The entrance area is always so exciting. The trains going by on three levels, it's so cool when you're on a trip, and you're so immersed in the world of the trip, but then in the middle you pop right out back in the queue area, it's kind of disorienting, and then back into the trip. And also, what they built at this location, really a cool idea, is there's an interior train station inside – where you can stop, and hang out. There are some observation decks to look into some of the other trips, a snack bar, rest rooms, and an arcade. When you're ready to continue your trip, your ticket is coded to make sure to continue where you left off from. I know some people who just hang out in there for hours – and they don't seem to mind, the Nightstation people. Oh wow, there aren't many folks on line here, great. We should be able to get on before too long. And see that panel up there? The front will slide down and there's a little puppet show in there. You know, the recurring Nightstation characters. There are all sorts of little details, and you could come here every day for a month, and some of these things, you might just get a look at once or twice, it's really made for people to keep returning, it never gets old. I think that was one of the concerns the investors had at the beginning – yeah, at Disney World or wherever, people only go there every few years. But at a mall, say, you want repeat business – so it can't be boring. But Nightstation made sure, not only do they add new rides often, but each time you ride it, there are secrets and hidden things, so that no two rides are ever the same. Let's go in, shall we?
